One cannot establish a friendship with the Supreme Lord, Ramacandra, on the basis of material qualities, such as one's birth in an aristocratic family, personal beauty, eloquence, sharp intelligence, or superior race or nation. None of these qualifications are a prerequisite for friendship with Lord Sri Ramacandra. Otherwise, how is it possible that, although we uncivilized inhabitants of the forest are not of noble birth, have no physical beauty, and cannot speak like gentlemen, Lord Ramacandra has accepted us as friends?

When such a liberated person, the pure devotee, hears of the transcendental qualities and activities of the Lord's incarnations for the performance of various pastimes, his hair stands on end on his body, tears fall from his eyes, and in his spiritual realization his voice falters. Sometimes he very openly dances, sometimes he sings loudly, and sometimes he cries. Thus he expresses his transcendental jubilation. When a devotee becomes like a person haunted by a ghost, he laughs and very loudly chants about the qualities of the Lord. Sometimes he sits to perform meditation, and he offers respects to every living entity, considering him a devotee of the Lord. Constantly breathing very heavily, he becomes careless of social etiquette and loudly chants like a madman, "Hare Krsna, Hare Krsna! O my Lord, O master of the universe!" The devotee is then freed from all material contamination because he constantly thinks of the Lord's pastimes and because his mind and body have been converted to spiritual qualities. Because of his intense devotional service, his ignorance, material consciousness and all kinds of material desires are completely burnt to ashes. This is the stage at which one can achieve the shelter of the Lord's lotus feet.

An intelligent person who has controlled his mind and conquered fear should give up all attachment to material objects such as wife, family and nation and should wander freely without embarrassment, hearing and chanting the holy names of the Lord, the bearer of the chariot wheel. The holy names of Krsna are all-auspicious because they describe His transcendental birth and activities, which He performs within this world for the salvation of the conditioned souls. Thus the holy names of the Lord are sung throughout the world. By chanting the holy name of the Supreme Lord, one comes to the stage of love of Godhead. Then the devotee is fixed in his vow as an eternal servant oi the Lord, and he gradually becomes very much attached to a particular name and form of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. As his heart melts with ecstatic love, he laughs very loudly or cries or shouts. Sometimes he sings and dances like a madman, for he is indifferent to public opinion.

The devotees of the Lord constantly discuss the glories of the Personality r Godhead among themselves. Thus they constantly remember the Lord ma remind one another of His qualities and pastimes. In this way, by their devotion to the principles of bhakti-yoga, the devotees please the Personality r Godhead, who takes away from them everything inauspicious. Being purified of all impediments, the devotees awaken to pure love of Godhead, 10A SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA loU and thus, even within this world, their spiritualized bodies exhibit symptoms of transcendental ecstasy, such as standing of the bodily hairs on end. Having achieved love of Godhead, the devotees sometimes cry out loud, absorbed in thought of the infallible Lord. Sometimes they laugh, feel great pleasure, speak out loud to the Lord, dance or sing. Such devotees, having transcended material, conditioned life, sometimes imitate the unborn Supreme by acting out His pastimes. And sometimes, achieving His personal audience, they remain peaceful and silent.

One's hands do not become contaminated if they accidentally touch saliva, or a fly. The mouth of an elephant or a horse is pure. The mouth of a cow or a calf is not pure but when the calf drinks milk, its mouth becomes pure. A piece of fruit eaten by a bird is considered uncontaminated. If one touches a woman in her menstrual period, a tailor, a naked person, a new- born baby, a Yavana, or a person carrying a dead body, he must bathe to become purified.

One should not converse with a woman who hates men or who has no husband and children. One should not converse with or associate with people who blaspheme the Supreme Lord, guests, devotional literature, sacrifices, and devotees. If one associates with such people then he must purify himself by looking at the sun. If, by chance, one sees a woman in her menstrual period, a person beyond the purview of Vedic culture, a wretched person, a cheater, an atheist, a new-born child, a eunuch, a naked person, or a Yavana, he should purify himself by looking at the sun. If one sees someone who disfigures dead bodies, or enjoys intimate association with many women, he should follow the same procedure for purification.

One should not make a habit of begging. One should not repeatedly beg from the same person because it may put him in difficulty. O brdhmanas, one should especially avoid stealing anything that is meant for the Lord's service. Even if one is in great difficulty, one should not steal anything belonging to a brdhmana. Learned persons may not consider poison to be poison but they certainly consider something stolen from a brahmana to be poison. The same principle applies to the possessions of the Supreme Lord. Therefore, one should always be very careful to avoid stealing anything that belongs to the Supreme Lord or a brdhmana.

atra vratasya nityatvād avaśyaṁ tat samācaret |
sarva-pāpāpahaṁ sarvārthadaṁ śrī-kṛṣṇa-toṣaṇam

Because the vow of Ekadasi is an eternal function, it destroys all sinful reactions and awards one all kinds of benefit. Therefore, one should observe this vow with great faith and devotion, knowing that it is very pleasing to Lord Krsna.

HBV 12.4

तच् च कृष्ण-प्रीणनत्वाद् विधि-प्राप्तत्वतस् तथा ।

O Parvati, one who eats on Ekadasi, thinking that, as my devotee, he can do as he likes, is certainly to be considered very sinful and is most displeasing to me.

HBV 12.82

vdyupurdne (In the Vdyu Purdna it is stated) upavdse tva saktasya dhitdgner athdpi vd putrdn va kdrayed anydn brdhrruxndn vdpi kdrayet

If one is unable to fast on Ekadasi, or daily performs fire sacrifice but is unable to fast—he can ask his son, or a qualified brdhmana, to fast on his behalf.

HBV 12.83

अथवा विप्रमुख्येभ्यः दान दद्यात् स्व-शक्तितः ।

athavā vipramukhyebhyaḥ dānaṁ dadyāt sva-śaktitaḥ |
upavāsaṁ tu kurvāṇaḥ puṇyaṁ śata-guṇaṁ labhet

Or, one can give charity to an elevated brdhmana, according to his capacity. One obtains one hundred times more benefit by fasting on behalf of someone than fasting for personal advancement.

HBV 12.84–85

यम् उद्दिश्य कृत॑ सो'पि सम्पूर्ण॑ फलम् अश्नुते ।

upavāsa-phalaṁ tasyāḥ patiḥ prāpnoty asaṁśayam

One, on whose behalf, fasting is observed obtains the complete benefit. By fasting on behalf of her husband, a wife can obtain one hundred times more benefit than fasting for herself and her husband also attains the benefit of following Ekadasi. This is the verdict of great sages who are well versed in the scriptures.

HBV 12.86

On Ekadasi, if one is unable to fast due to some illness then he can ask his wife or obedient son to fast on his behalf. One can also take help from his brother or sister in this regard. In this way, one's vow of Ekadasi will remain intact.

HBV 12.87

yam uddiśya kṛtaṁ so'pi sampūrṇaṁ phalam āpnuyāt

O brdhmarias, those who observe fasting on Ekadasi, on behalf of their grandfathers, obtain the complete benefit. The one who fasts receives ten times the benefit, while the person for whom the fasting was performed receives the complete benefit. Of this there is no doubt.

HBV 12.91

The benefit obtained from observing all the other vows can be achieved simply by observing the vow of Ekadasi. Whatever merit can be achieved with great endeavor by following other vows and whatever piety can be attained by performing various religious rituals are awarded to one who observes the vow of Ekadasi.

If one desires to have good children, he should avoid observing an Ekadasi that is mixed with a Dasami for even the time required for the blinking of an eye. There are four considerations in this regard. Even though there are some concessions for those who are unable to completely fast, such as eating some fruit at night that was obtained without begging, one should not observe an Ekadasi that is mixed with Dasami in this way.

, 7 4 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA na garbhe visate jantur itydha bhagavan harih If a Dvadasi overlaps the next day, one should not observe the vow of a pure Ekadasi but instead, fast on Dvadasi. If one breaks his fast the next day, when Dvadasi continues due to an overlapping, he will no longer experience birth in this material world. This is conformed by Lord Hari Himself. (This is called vanjuli-maha-dvadasi.)

If a pure Ekadasi overlaps the next day, if the Evadasi is shortened so that Trayodasi begins at the end of the night of Dvadasi, this is called trisprsd- mahd'dvddasi because it has the touch of all three days. By observing this vow, all of one's sinful reactions are vanquished.

By observing the vow of trisprsa-maha-dvadasi, which is a mixture of Ekadasi, Dvadasi, and Trayodasi, one obtains the merit of performing one hundred sacrifices. One should then break his fast on Trayodasi.

Lord Hari personally remains present on Trisprsa-maha-dvadasi. Whether he desires good progeny and wealth, or has no material desires, or desires liberation from material existence—a devotee of Lord Visnu should carefully observe this vow.

Trisprsa-maha-dvadasi is a mixture of Ekadasi, Dvadasi, and a touch of Trayodasi, at the end of the night. This vow is very auspicious and so one should observe it with faith and devotion.

HBV 12.382

A Dvadasi that is overlapped by a short period of Ekadasi and ends before sunrise the next day is very auspicious. The observance of such a vow mitigates all of one's sinful reactions.

HBV 12.383

If an Ekadasi overlaps the next day and if the Dvadasi does not extend to the Trayodasi, those who desire liberation from material bondage should fast on such a Dvadasi that is mixed with Ekadasi.

HBV 12.384

If a Dvadasi begins even one kald after the end of Ekadasi and does not extend up to the next sunrise when Trayodasi begins, it is known as trisprsa. Because Lord Visnu manifests Himself on that Dvadasi, it takes away all of one's sinful reactions. It is recommended in the revealed scriptures that one observe such a vow.

When an Ekadasi overlaps the Dvadasi but the Dvadasi does not overlap the next day, it is called a kslna, or weak Dvadasi. In such a case, one should observe the recommended vow for night.

One should completely fast on both the Ekadasi of the waxing moon and the Ekadasi of the waning moon. This is the duty of vanaprasthas and sannyasis. However, householders should at least fast on the Ekadasi of the waxing moon.

During Ekadasi of both the waxing moon and waning moon, one should control his mind and senses, abstain from eating, bathe according to the injunctions of the scriptures, dress in clean clothes, and worship Lord Visnu with faith by offering Him sandalwood paste, flowers, incense, a ghee lamp, food, and other paraphernalia. After doing so, one should chant various mantras, perform a fire sacrifice, circumambulate the Lord, offer suitable prayers, sing songs in glorification of the Lord, play musical instruments, and dance in ecstasy. One should then offer obeisances to the Lord by falling flat onto the ground while exclaiming, Jayal Jayal He should then remain awake the entire night.

One should make a Deity of Lord Narayana with eight ratis of gold and then place Him on a copper plate and set it on a nicely decorated water pitcher. According to one's means, one should offer the Lord an umbrella made of either peacock feathers or bamboo. One should offer shoes to the Lord and burn fragrant incense in a bell metal holder. Then, one should bathe the Lord with milk products. After being bathed, the Lord should be offered a nice dhoti and cddara and sandalwood paste should be smeared over His body. In this way, one should worship Lord Narayana, who is seated on top of the water pitcher filled with scented water and decorated with a flower garland. One should not fail to worship the Deity with offerings of fragrant flowers.

nispṛśākhyaṁ vrataṁ viṣṇoḥ śṛṇuṣva gadato mama

I will now describe the vow of Trisprsa Maha-dvadasi, which is very dear to Lord Visnu. This vow fulfills all the desires of materialist persons and it awards liberation to those who are renounced.

HBV 13.407

O great sage, in this age of Kali, one who faithfully glorifies the vow of Trisprsa Maha-dvadasi obtains the merit of directly worshiping Lord Kesava.

HBV 13.408

Even by observing the ritual known as purascarana, all of one's sinful reactions are not destroyed and yet, simply by glorifying the vow of Trisprsa

.., SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA Maha-dvadasi, all of one's sinful reactions are vanquished. There is no doubt about this.

HBV 13.409–410

O foremost brdhmaria, one cannot attain liberation simply by studying the Vedas and Puranas, by visiting millions of holy places, by observing many vows, or by worshiping the demigods if he does not observe the vow of Trisprsa Maha-dvadasi. Lord Krsna, the master of the demigods, has created Trisprsa-devi, which is the most auspicious among all vows, for the benefit of human society.

Lord Visnu has declared to Mahadeva, to Brahma within the ocean of milk, and to His other surrendered souls that those who observe the vow of Trisprsa Maha-dvadasi, despite being attached to material enjoyment, will attain liberation, even if they have no knowledge of Sarikhya philosophy and self-realization.

somena somajenāpi pāpa-koṭa-vināśinī

O sage, you should observe this vow of Trisprsa Maha-dvadasi, which bestows liberation. You should give up the association of sages who are interested in cultivating knowledge of the Sarikhya philosophy and simply observe the vow of Trisprsa Maha-dvadasi, especially when it occurs during the fortnight of the waxing moon, in the month of Karttika, on a Monday or Wednesday. The observance of this vow will certainly nullify millions of sinful reactions.

HBV 13.416

यस्याम् उपोषण कृत्वा हत्याम् उक्तो महेश्वरः

O great sage, as a result of fasting on Trisprsa Maha-dvadasi, renouncing all the other vows, Bahuvirya, in times long past, became freed from the sin of killing thousands of brdhmanas.

HBV 13.419

O foremost brdhmana, as a result of observing the vow of Trisprsa Maha- dvadasi, the sinful reactions accumulated by killing thousands of brdhmanas are vanquished and so, what to speak of ordinary sins?

HBV 13.421

O foremost brdhmarxa, even though there is no possibility of liberation merely by bathing at Prayaga, Kasi, or Gomati, there is certainly a chance of liberation by fasting on Trisprsa Maha-dvadasi, in front of the Deity of Lord Krsna.

HBV 13.422

मरणेन प्रयागे तु मुक्तिः काश्या तथैव च ।

By giving up one's life at Prayaga or Kasi, one attains liberation. By bathing in the holy river, Gomati, one attains liberation. However, by fasting on Trisprsa Maha-dvadasi, one can attain liberation even while remaining at home.

HBV 13.423

For materialist, who are attached to sense enjoyment, it is extremely difficult to attain liberation. Even those who are detached from sense gratification cannot possibly attain liberation simply by cultivating knowledge of the Saiikhya philosophy. Therefore, O brdhmana, just observe the Trisprsa Maha-dvadasi, which awards liberation.

O brdhmana, the benefit of observing the vow of Trisprsa Maha-dvadasi has been described by Lord Madhava to Jahnava, on the banks of Praci Sarasvati River.

HBV 13.426–427

श्री-जाह्नव्य् उवाच—

O Hrsikesa, sinful people, even the killers of brdhmanas, will bathe in my water, in this age of Kali, so that my body will be burnt by the pollution of their horrible sins. O Supreme Lord! O Garudadhvaja! How will I become freed from these sins?

My dear child, do not cry. Listen to what I have to say. I reside at Sristhala, which is situated on the banks of the river, Praci Sarasvati, the daughter of Lord Brahma. You should bathe in that river every day. If you do so, you will become as pure as a Vedic mantra.

There is no doubt that wherever Lord Brahma's daughter, the Praci Sarasvati River, flows, I remain at that place. Not only Me, but all the demigods and millions of holy places are also present there.

O auspicious one, you should simply observe the vow of Trisprsa Maha- dvadasi, which is superior to the holy river, Sarasvati, which is superior to hundreds of millions of holy places, which is superior to millions of sacrifices, which is superior to observing vows and giving charity, which is superior to practicing penance and chanting mantras, which is superior to the cultivation of the Sankhya philosophy, and which awards the four objectives of human life.

O Supreme Lord, does Trisprsa indicate a combination of Dasami, Ekadasi and Dvadasi ? Kindly tell me how this occurs.

HBV 13.438

श्री-प्राचीमाधव उवाच—

śrī-prācīmādhava uvāca—
āsurī trispṛśā devi yā tvayā parikīrtitā |
varjanīyā prayatnena vrata-hīno yathā yatiḥ

O goddess, what you have indicated is a demoniac and mixed Trisprsa. You should reject such a day for observing a vow, just as one neglects a sannydsi who does not observe any kind of vow.

HBV 13.439

varjanīyā prayatnena yathā nārī rajasvalā

Just as having intimate association with a woman during her menstrual period is prohibited, so is observing a vow on a Trisprsa Maha-dvadasi that is polluted by the touch of Dasami because it increases the life span and strength of the demons.

Just as having sexual relations with a woman during her menstrual period is forbidden, any Ekadasi or Dvadasi that is mixed with Dasami is strictly avoided by Vaisnavas.

O Jahnavi, by My mercy, Trisprsa Maha-dvadasi annuls ten hundred thousand sinful reactions. However, those who are not favored by Me do not obtain any benefit by observing this vow.

HBV 13.442

You should know for certain that Trisprsa Maha-dvadasi begins with the morning touched by Ekadasi, continues throughout the day as pure DvadasI, and at the end of the night, overlaps Trayodasl. If a Trisprsa Maha-dvadasi is touched by Dasami then it is not pure.

nyaset tāmra-mayaṁ devaṁ snāpayitvā vilepitam |
paridhānaṁ tataḥ kāryaṁ vastra-yugmena bhaktitaḥ

According to one's financial capacity, one should make a Deity of Lord Damodara out of gold. One should take a copper plate, fill it with rice paddy, and set it on top of a copper pitcher filled with water and decorated with a flower garland. There should be five kinds of jewels, aguru, and camphor placed in that water. Then, one should devotedly bathe Lord Damodara, apply sandalwood paste to His body, and dress Him in a dhoti and cddara.

One should then worship the Lord by chanting appropriate mantras that were imparted to him by his spiritual master. One should also offer seasonal flowers and tender tulasi leaves.

One should offer an umbrella made of palm leaves and having a bamboo handle, and a pair of shoes. This should be followed by offering nice cooked food and fruit.

HBV 13.453

उपवीत तु दातव्य सोत्तरीय नर दृढम् ।

The arghya mantra is as follows: O Janardana! If your remembrance removes all my sinful reactions then kindly dispel my nightmares, wicked mentality, tension, and fear of hellish life. O Lord! O Visnu! O Damodara! O Supreme Lord! O Janardana! Also remove my fear born of sinful activities, as well as all other kinds of worldly and heavenly fear. Kindly accept this arghya. Let my devotion always remain fixed on Your lotus feet. Thereafter, one should worship the Lord by offering Him incense, a ghee lamp, food, and drati. O best of sages, you should offer a small conch shell filled with water above the head of the Lord. After properly completing the worship of the Lord in this way, one should offer fine white cloth to his spiritual master and worship him by offering sandalwood paste, a flower garland, and other articles. One should also offer shoes, an umbrella, a ring, a water pot, eatables, betel nuts, grains, and a monetary daksind to his spiritual master. After worshiping Lord Hari, the master of the demigods, as well as the spiritual master in this way, one should remain awake the entire night while studying the scriptures, singing, dancing, and playing musical instruments. At the end of the night, one should again offer arghya to the Lord, according to the prescribed rules and regulations. Thereafter, one should complete his daily duties, such as bathing, and then sit down to have his meal, along with the other brdhmanas.

After offering obeisances to Sri Krsna Caitanya, who is the only shelter for those who are wandering aimlessly with the material world, and who inspires even those who are devoid of pious activities and noble birth to take to the path of devotion, the worship and festivals that are to be observed in each month will now be described.

Lord Krsna has declared: Know the month of Agrahayana to be a part of My splender. Therefore, the month of Agrahayana is the principal month among all the twelve months. By observing vows and performing ritualistic activities, such as bathing in a holy place, giving charity, and worshiping the Supreme Lord, in this month, one achieves the wealth of devotional service to the Supreme Lord. In the month of Agrahayana, one should especially worship Lord Hari in a tulasi forest, in the association of devotees, by dancing, singing, and observing festivals. In this month, one should offer colorful garments to the Lord that protect Him from the cold. When the Lord is offered such garments, He dispels the devotee's mundane conception born of material existence.

The great sage among the demigods has said: In the month of Agrahayana, by worshiping Lord Hari while eating only once a day, and feeding the brdhmanas, one attains liberation. One who spends the month of Agrahayana, which is very dear to Lord Hari, by faithfully executing the vows to be observed at night becomes qualified to attain the eternal abode of Lord Visnu.

It is the duty of everyone to worship the Supreme Lord by chanting appropriate mantras and performing sacrifice after bathing in the morning during the month of Agrahayana. To offer sweet rice mixed with gur, or jaggery, every day is highly recommended in this month. By observing these vows throughout the month, one obtains good fortune and by the mercy of Lord Madhava, attains the abode of the Lord after death. O n e should observe the vows that are to be executed during the nights of this month as described in the Varaha Purdna. The fruit of these vows are also described therein but because they are in the category of fruitive activities, we are not describing them here.

In order to please Lord Hari, one should sleep on the floor and bathe three times a day for one month, starting from the Ekadas'i of the waxing moon in the month of Pausa. During this period of one month, one is advised to give up all desires for sense gratification, control his senses, and worship Lord Hari three times a day. This will award one immense piety.

By worshiping Lord Hari with great pomp, while offering Him yogurt and rice for the entire month of Pausa, or for fifteen days, or for ten days, or for even five days, one attains the lotus feet of the Lord. One should offer rice mixed with yogurt to Lord Hari, while remaining in the association of devotees and dancing, singing, and playing musical instruments. After offering this food with love and devotion, one should faithfully accept the Lord's remnants. One who devotedly honors the remnants of Lord Hari, or distributes them to others, or partakes of them with other devotees, achieves unlimited benefit. By bathing Lord Hari, the master of the demigods, with five kilos of pure cow's ghee on the full moon day joined by the Pusya star in the month of Pausa, one undoubtedly obtains the merit of performing a horse sacrifice.

For the pleasure of Lord Hari, throughout the month of Magha, one should, according to his ability, donate ghee lamps, wood, blankets, cloth, shoes, kunkuma, ghee, oil, quilts, cotton pieces of cloth, and rice. One should at least donate ten grams of gold every day to qualified brahmanas who are well-versed in the Vedas. In this sacred month of Magha, the brahmanas should neither eat food cooked nor given by others, nor give charity to others. O King, one who is desirous of auspiciousness should feed brahmanas according to his capacity and give them daksina on the last day of the month.

When the sun travels to the constellation, Makara, if one bathes at home with warm water, he obtains the result of bathing in a holy place for six years. The opinion of great sages is that by bathing in a pond outside the house, one receives the benefit of bathing in a holy place for one full year. By bathing in a lake, one receives twice the above benefit, by bathing in a kunda, one receives four times the benefit, and by bathing in a sacred river, one receives one hundred times the benefit. O exalted king, by bathing at the confluence of two rivers, one receives four hundred times the benefit, and by bathing in the Ganges when the sun travels to the Makara-rasi, one receives one thousand times the benefit. Bathing at the confluence of the Gariga and Yamuna in the month of Magha awards a person one hundred thousand times the benefit.

As the sky does not look beautiful without the presence of the sun, moon, or stars, the performance of pious activities is considered incomplete without bathing in a holy place during the month of Magha. As bubbles on the surface of water and the tiny insect known as Puttika die immediately after birth, those who do not bathe in a holy place during the month of Magha are born only to die. Lord Madhava does not become as pleased by the observing of vows, giving of charity, or performance of austerity, as He is by a bath in a holy place during the month of Magha. It is said that the injunction that one must bathe in a holy place during the month of Magha exists simply for the satisfaction of Lord Vasudeva.

W h a t to speak of them, even elderly men, women, children, and even eunuchs can obtain great benefit by bathing in a holy place during the m o n t h of Magha. T h e three varnas—brahmanas, ksatriyas, and vaisyas are advised to bathe while chanting Vedic mantras. There is no recommendation for chanting mantras for women a n d sudras and so they should bathe in silence.

You are very dear to the Supreme Lord and so, I will now describe to you the glories of the month of Magha. One who bathes in a holy place during the month of Magha obtains the same merit that one receives by having darsana of Lord Hari at Cakratlrtha, or Lord Kesava at Mathura. By bathing at a holy place during the month of Magha, while carefully controlling one's senses and mind, and remaining pure in behavior, one will no longer experience birth in the material world. O best of sages, as the transcendental sound, orn, is the origin of all the Vedas, ritualistic bathing during the month of Magha is said to be the origin of all kinds of vows in relation to Lord Hari.

What could be a more suitable time for spiritual cultivation than the period before sunrise? This time is also appropriate for bathing during the month of Magna. One should rise early in the morning and go outside to bathe. With every step one takes to go out for having a bath, he will achieve the merit of performing a horse sacrifice. And, with every step that one takes while going outside to bathe in the month of Magha, he exhausts the reactions to his sins that have not yet fructified. For this reason, Yamaraja is very pleased with such a person. The result one obtains by giving a brown cow in charity at Kuruksetra during a solar eclipse can be achieved by one who bathes in a holy place every day during the month of Magha.

By renouncing one's favorite object, which is the root cause of attachment, and by acting according to the injunctions of the scriptures, the month of Magha, which is the source of all righteousness and which destroys all of one's sinful reactions, will become one's supreme benefactor. The month of Magha is certainly the best remedy, the best objective of life, and the best means to achieve all kinds of material enjoyment. For those who have no material desires, this month awards the gift of transcendental knowledge.

Those who go to the planets of the immortals by the strength of their pious activities, again fall down after enjoying the fruit of their karma. However, those who rituahstically bathe in the month of Magha never fall down from the planets of the immortals. There is nothing more purifying or effective in destroying sinful reactions than a sacred bath in the month of Magha. It is the best remedy for conditioned souls because it instantly takes away all sinful reactions. This fact has been disclosed by the great sage, Bhrgu, to the Vidyadharas, the intelligent Devaduta, and to Vikundala at Manigiri.

It is more beneficial than all other kinds of vows. It awards all types of benefit. The month of Magna awards special benefit that surpasses the benefit achieved by yoga, fire sacrifice, or penance. The benefit one obtains by bathing for ten years in holy places, such as Puskara, Kuruksetra, Brahmavarta, Prthudaka, Kasi, Prayaga, or Gahga-sagara can be achieved simply by bathing in the month of Magna for just three days. Of this there is no doubt.

Those who have a long-standing desire to enjoy heavenly pleasure should bathe in any reservoir of water during the month of Magha, when the sun travels in the Makara-rasi. Those who wish to have a long duration of life, good health, wealth, beauty, and good qualities should never forget to take a ritualistic bath in the month of Magha. Those who are terribly frightened by the prospect of hellish life and earthly miseries should carefully observe the vow of taking a holy bath in the month of Magha.

Either with material desires, or without material desires, if one ritualistically bathes in a reservoir of water in the month of Magha, he will not have to suffer any miseries, in this life or in the next. As the moon increases and decreases during the waxing and waning fortnights, by bathing in the month of Magha, one's sinful reactions decrease and his piety increases. As jewels are produced in the ocean, all kinds of piety are produced in the sacred bath during the month of Magha. One also achieves a long duration of life, wealth, a good wife, and assets by observing this vow. As a touchstone awards one's desired results, and as a wish-fulfilling cow supplies an abundance of milk, a sacred bath in the month of Magha fulfills all kinds of desires. Performance of austerity in Satya-yuga, performance of sacrifice in Treta-yuga, Deity worship in Dvapara-yuga, and the chanting of the holy name of Hari in Kali-yuga— these are the appropriate processes for worshiping the Lord in the various ages—but a holy bath in the month of Magha is highly recommended in all the four yugas.

It causes distress to others, commits sinful activities, tortures other living entities, and is the birthplace of envy and hatred. This body is controlled by greed, duplicity, cruelty, and ungratefulness. It is full of insatiable desires, and the source of all faults and contamination. It is made of three principle elements—mucus, bile, and air. It is impure, it releases impure fluids, it has nine holes, and it is influenced by the threefold material miseries. This body is naturally prone to irreligiosity, it is filled with hundreds of material desires, and it is situated on the verge of hell in the form of lust, anger, and so on. When this body is dead, it becomes a feast for worms, jackals, and dogs. After death, the body is burnt to ashes. 36 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA It is due to good fortune accumulated in previous births that one becomes expert in the spiritual science. Similarly, it is due to the good practices of one's previous live whereby one becomes attracted to taking a sacred bath in the month of Magha. Bathing in the month of Magha purifies all purifying agents and washes away the mire of material existence. O fortunate one, those who take a sacred bath in the month of Magha, which fulfills all of one's desires, becomes qualified to enjoy the opulence of the sun-god and moon-god.

O king of kings, for one who takes a holy bath in the month of Magha there is nothing in life left for him to obtain. Such a person becomes completely relieved of all sinful reactions. Even the merit of performing a sacrifice and giving daksina is less than the merit of taking bath in ordinary water during the month of Magha. What then can be said of a sacred bath taken at a holy place? There is no doubt that it awards immense benefit. In this world, there is no activity better than taking a sacred bath in the month of Magha, and this is the most effective method for transferring one to the heavenly planets, or destroying one's sinful reactions. There is nothing more beneficial than taking a sacred bath in the month of Magha.

O King, this auspicious ritual is very rarely performed within the three worlds. If one is unable to bathe throughout the entire month of Magna, he should at least bathe for three days. If one wishes to improve his poverty-stricken condition then he should also give charity according to his ability. Simply by taking a holy bath for three days in the month of Magha, one can become wealthy and achieve a long duration of life. By bathing for five or seven days, one's good fortune goes on increasing, like the waxing moon.

40 SRIHARI-BHAKTI-VILASA There are many other statements about the glories of the month of Magna to be found in various Vedic literatures, such as the Padma Purana. The glories of taking a bath in the month of Magna has thus been explained. Among the various rituals to be performed in the month of Magna, taking bath in the early morning is the best. There are three major festivals in the month of Magna that are to be observed by everyone. These are—Vasanta Paficaml, Bhaimi EkadasI, and Varaha Dvadasi.

One should worship Lord Hari with grandeur, offering newly-grown leaves, flowers, and sandalwood paste on the fifth day of the waxing moon in the month of Magna. One should perform Deity worship with great devotion and serve the Vaisnavas according to one's capacity. On this day there should be singing, dancing, and the playing of musical instruments in various ways.

The vow of Sivaratri has thus been briefly described. If one wishes to know more in this regard, he should consult literatures such as the Siva-dharmottara. The glories of Sivaratri are known everywhere. It is also a well-known fact that once, long ago, a hunter attained liberation by unknowingly worshiping a siva-linga while remaining awake the entire night.

I am eager to observe the vow of Rama-navamI and so I will fast for eight praharas, or twenty-four hours. For the pleasure of Lord Ramacandra, I will donate a golden Deity of Him with great devotion to one of His intelligent devotees. Being pleased by my worship, may Lord Ramacandra quickly remove all the reactions to the grave sinful activities that 1 had committed in many previous lifetimes.

HBV 14.267

O King, pious activities, such as bathing in a holy place or giving charity, that are performed during the month of Karttika, when the sun enters the Tula-rasi, yield unlimited benefit. One obtains one thousand times more benefit than this when such activities are performed during the period when the sun enters the Makara-rasi in the month of Magha. One obtains one hundred times more benefit than this when the sun travels in the Mesa-rasi in the month of Vais'akha.

svātīnakṣatrayoge tu śanivāre hi madvratam |
siddhiyogasya yoge ca labhyate daivayogataḥ | sarvairetaistu saṁyuktairhatyākoṭivināśanam

This vow is generally observed on a Saturday, when the Svati-naksatra joins the auspicious day. Sometimes, by the arrangement of providence, there occurs a a very auspicious moment known as siddhi-yoga. If all these factors combine then such a auspicious day can destroy even the sinful reactions for killing millions of living entities.

For observing the Lord's water pastimes, one should place the Deity of Lord Krsna under dripping water when the heat of summer increases during the month of Jyaistha. According to how hot it becomes, one may also place Krsna under dripping water during the months of Vaisakha, Asadha, and Sravana, especially on bright sunny days.

When the heat of summer becomes unbearable due to scorching sunshine, one should place the Deity of Lord Krsna in a container filled with cool, fragrant water. After worshiping the Lord as one is accustomed to doing, one should place Him on a throne next to the water pot and again worship Him with offerings of sandalwood paste and other articles.

Thereafter, in the early morning of DvadasI, one should first bathe and then give water and gold in charity to the hrahmanas while observing the correct procedures. After doing this, one should have his meal in the association of the hrahmanas. O Bhima, hear now as I describe the benefit one attains by following this vow.

HBV 15.25

One who renders devotional service to Lord Krsna, who is praised with selected verses, after decorating his body with branded symbols of the Sudarsana cakra becomes qualified to attain the liberation of residing on the same planet as the Supreme Lord. The twelve points of the cakra are called nemi. By voluntarily branding the body with hot nemis, one can attain the liberation of merging into the Lord's existence.

HBV 15.61

Those who do not decorate their bodies by branding a cakra are foolish and they will not be able to attain the transcendental abode of the Lord. Those who brand their bodies with symbols of the Lord's weapons will live happily in the association of liberated souls.

HBV 15.63

Those who decorate their arms with branded symbols of Lord Visnu's cakra and lotus will cross over the ocean of material existence and become supremely saintly personalities. They will be liberated, although living in this world. Some devotees decorate their bodies with symbols of Lord Visnu's five weapons, such as the club.

viṣṇurahasye—
na karoti vidhānena pavitrāropaṇantu yaḥ |
tasya sāṁvatsarī pūjā niṣphalā munisattama

O foremost sage, one who does not celebrate the festival of pavitraropana as enjoined in the scriptures, then all his worship performed during the forthcoming year will be useless.

HBV 15.173

sauvarṇe rājataistāmraiḥ kṣaumaiḥ sūtraistu pādmikaiḥ |
kārpāsairvā pavitrāṇīṣyante kaśaiḥ kuśairapi

The sacred thread for Lord Krsna should be made of gold, silver, copper, silk, or cotton. In the absence of these, one may use a thread make of kusa grass or reeds.

HBV 15.184

तत्र कार्पासिक॰ सूत्र॰ ब्राह्मणीकर्तित॰ शुभम् ।

tatra kārpāsikaṁ sūtraṁ brāhmaṇīkartitaṁ śubham |
ānīya triguṇīkṛtya punastriguṇayet śuciḥ

First of all, one should collect some pure and auspicious cotton thread that was made by brahmanas, and then one should prepare a sacred thread for the Supreme Lord with six strands of that thread.

HBV 15.185

पञ्चगव्येन तत् प्रोक्ष्य प्रक्षाल्य शुचिनाम्बुना ।

strīṇi sāṣṭaśatenāsya tasyārddhenāsya cārddhataḥ | jānūrunābhidaghnāni pavitrāṇyācaret prabhoḥ

One should make three sacred threads for the Lord. The first one should consist of one hundred and eight strands of thread and should hang to the Lord's knees. The second one should consist of fifty-four strands of thread and it should hang to the Lord's thighs. The third one should consist of twenty-seven strands of thread and it should hang to the Lord's navel.

HBV 15.187

saptaviṁśatibhiḥ sūtraiḥ ṣaḍviṁśatibhirātmanaḥ

The sacred thread for the Lord's associates, such as the demigods, should be made of either twenty-seven strands of pure thread, sixteen strands of thread, or twelve strands of thread. The knots should be tied very nicely. The sacred thread of Agnideva should be made with twenty- seven strands of thread, and the sacred thread of the spiritual master should be made with twenty-six strands of thread.

HBV 15.195

At the completion of the wrestling competition, Devakl-devI entered the wrestling arena, where she was surrounded by the members of the Kukkura and Andhaka dynasties, who worshiped and glorified her and Vasudeva. At that time, she placed Me on her lap and lamented. With great affection, she addressed Me, saying, "My dear son! My dear son!" Vasudeva also, with a choked voice that was filled with humility, and with tears in his eyes, embraced Me, along with Balarama, and spoke these words.

The eighth day of the dark fortnight in the month of Bhadra is to be observed by fasting. If this day is joined by the Rohini naksatra, it awards excellent benefit. If, at midnight, it is joined by Rohini, it is even more auspicious and awards more pious merit. If it falls on Monday or Wednesday it is more auspicious and if it overlaps the ninth day, it is even more sacred.

222 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA O exalted brahmana, when the AstamI is joined by the RohinI naksatra during the fortnight of the waning moon, it is known as Jayanti. This sacred day frees one of all sinful reactions. By observing a fast on this day, all the reactions to one's sinful activities that were committed during childhood, youth, and old age, as well as those committed during many previous lifetimes, are vanquished.

Because these moments are very rare, if one were to wait for them to occur then, the possibility of observing Janmastami would be remote. It is only for this reason that one is advised to reject an Astami that is contaminated by the presence of SaptamI and fast only on a pure Astami. To destroy the demons, the Supreme Lord appeared on that day, which was enhanced by the presence of the Rohinl naksatra. Therefore, one should celebrate a grand festival on that auspicious and pure day.

The six kinds of evidence that are found in the philosophical literatures called Purva-mimdmsd are—sruti, linga, vdkyd, prakarana, sthana and samakhya. Each of these kinds of evidence is weaker than the previous one. Therefore, by all means, sruti is to be considered the best evidence. If a vow is taken on an impure AstamI, then the question of breaking of the vow arises. This has been previously explained. According to the statement of Skanda Purana found in text 365, a JanmastamI contaminated by the touch of Saptaml at the time of sunrise should be rejected. In the Nrsimha-paricarya, this has been discussed. Various statements regarding a pure DvadasI without the touch of DaSaml, or AstamI without the touch of Saptaml, have been refuted on the strength 260 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILAS A balasya caritarh visnoh pathanlyarh punah punah Then, one should light many ghee lamps in front of the Lord and decorate the room with flowers, so that it looks like a flower garden. One should arrange for singing, the playing of musical instruments, and the offering of prayers. The childhood pastimes of Lord should be recited at this time.

HBV 15.481

पूजिता तु यथा देवैः प्रसन्ना त्व वरानने । पूजिता तु मया भक्त्या प्रसाद कुरु सुव्रते

pūjitā tu yathā devaiḥ prasannā tvaṁ varānane |
pūjitā tu mayā bhaktyā prasādaṁ kuru suvrate

O foremost brahmana, one should worship Lord Hari after worshiping one's spiritual master. To worship Krsna and Devaki, one should chant these mantras, which are mentioned in the Puranas.

HBV 15.482

यथा पुत्र हरि लब्ध्वा प्राप्ता ते निवृतिः परा । निर्वृति देवि तामेव सपुत्रा त्व प्रयच्छ मे

yathā putraṁ hariṁ labdhvā prāptā te nivṛtiḥ parā |
nirvṛtiṁ devi tāmeva saputrā tvaṁ prayaccha me

O Aditi, you are the mother of the demigods! You destroy all sinful reactions. 1 am greatly afraid of material existence and so, kindly accept my worship.

HBV 15.483

290 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA When DvadasI is not combined with the Sravana naksatra, then one should observe Ekadasi combined with Sravana instead. Such an Ekadasi frees one from all sinful reactions. The original Personality of Godhead, Lord Visnu is the Lord of both Ekadasi and DvadasI. Therefore, one should not discriminate between Ekadasi and DvadasI, considering one to be more important than the other. If one does so, he will fall down.

In this connection, EkadasI is understood to indicate the entire day and night of EkadasI, even if it extends for a shorter period of time. The presence of Dvadasi overlapping EkadasI is always seen.

In the first type of visnu srnkhala yoga, there is a prominence of the Sravana naksatra and so the parana should be observed on Dvadasi. This is in accordance with the observance of parana as it will be described later on. Without observing in this way, one would have to observe two separate vows.

HBV 15.603

tattatsāhityamevāha pūrvasmādeva hetutaḥ

The first verse of Matysa Purana clearly explains this fact. When the Sravana naksatra remains joined like a chain with Ekadasi and DvadasI, it is called visnu srnkhala yoga. In this yoga, the Sravana naksatra prominently remains present during DvadasI, and touches Ekadasi as well. Whether DvadasI and the Sravana naksatra both are present on Ekadasi, or whether DvadasI combined with the Sravana naksatra touches Ekadasi, it is considered to be the same.

It is certain that by fasting on this day, one can attain the abode of Lord Visnu, Svetadvlpa.

In this case, one should fast on DvadasI and break his fast on Trayodasl. Although it is sometimes prohibited to break one's fast on Trayodasl, according to the instruction of the Supreme Lord, one should do so to keep the great vow of Maha-dvadasT intact.

294 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA dvddasyam upavdsdc ca trayodasyarh tu parandt trayodasyarh pdranarh hi iravane 'pi nisetsyate This particular yoga is distinct from the first visnu srnkhala yoga. Because of fasting on Dvadasi and breaking the fast on Trayodasi, and because of the absence of Dvadasi at the time of parana, it is known as visnu srnkhala yoga. When the vow of EkadasI is joined with the Sravana naksatra, one is forbidden to break his fast on Trayodasi.

When EkadasI, Dvadasi, the Sravana naksatra, and Wednesday are all joined, it is called deva dundubhi yoga. By fasting on this day, one achieves the merit of performing ten thousand sacrifices.

HBV 15.608

pāraṇāhe tu dvādaśyāḥ śravaṇāyāśca vṛddhitaḥ |
rātrau tu pāraṇābhāvādayuktaṁ kartuṁ vratadvayam

If, at the time of parana, both the Sravana naksatra and Dvadasi are still present—due to the prohibition of observing parana at night, one should observe both vows separately.

HBV 15.609

न चात्र विधिलोपः स्यादुभयोर्देवता हरिः

But, if the Sravana naksatra is present on TrayodasI, one should avoid observing parana as long as it remains present. When there is an absence of the Sravana naksatra on Ekadas'I and Dvadas'I and subsequently the vijaya yoga is obstructed, one is advised to fast on Ekadas'I and worship Lord Vamanadeva on DvadasI.

Also, when there is visnu srnkhala yoga, if the Sravana naksatra and the tithi extend to the next night, those who are able to do so should observe both vows separately.

HBV 15.613

If, at the time of parana, both the tithi and naksatra remain present, one who is unable to observe both vows should fast only on DvadasI because it is very auspicious, being joined by the Sravana naksatra.

296 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA

Because of the alternative arrangement made for observing visnu irnkhala yoga, the ascertainment of pdrana is very clear. There is an exception to this rule only if the presence of Sravana continues beyond pdrana. Further evidence in this regard will be presented later on.

The presence of Dvadasi extending into the night will not be discussed at present. Therefore, the word varddhate in text 619 indicates that the presence of the naksatra extends beyond the time of parana.

HBV 15.622

With regards to the first visnu srnkhala yoga, one should not observe parana on Taryodasi. No statement is found that one can observe parana on Trayodasl. Therefore, the first visnu srnkhala yoga is of two types.

Actually, by using the word tu with regard to the first visnu srnkhala yoga, it has been established that this yoga is one. Therefore, after careful consideration, it is concluded that the second visnu srnkhala yoga applies when the duration of DvadasI is completed.

324 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA Among all twelve months, Karttika is the best If Lord Visnu is worshiped with even meager offerings during the month of Karttika, He rewards the worshiper with residence in His own abode. This I have concluded after careful consideration.

HBV 16.42

O Bhargava, by bathing at Kuruksetra, one achieves millions of times more merit than by an ordinary ritualistic bath. The same merit is attained by regularly bathing in the Ganges. One obtains more merit than this by taking a holy bath at Puskara. More than that is obtained by bathing at Dvaraka but by bathing and worshiping the Supreme Lord during the month of Karttika, one is transferred to the planet of Lord Krsna.

padme tatraiva (In the same section of the Padma Purana it is stated) yathdrpitarh dehamanena visnave bhitena mithyd vacaso mahdtmand daityena tendtha kathora cestayd baddho balir vdmana murttind vata The great soul, Bali Maharaja, surrendered everything , even his body, unto the lotus feet of the Supreme Lord, Vamanadeva, being afraid of violating his promise. Lord Vamanadeva then displayed His staunch mood and arrested Bali Maharaja.

Although Bali Maharaja was arrested by Vamanadeva and brought to Patala-loka, and although he became very morose, he did not find any fault with the Lord because he was completely free from the sense of "I" and "mine" with regards to the material body and things related to the body. As a result, Lord Hari became extremely pleased and said: "From now on, Bali Maharaja will receive a share of sacrificial offerings."

One who increases the beauty of Lord Krsna's chariot by decorating it with flags and other paraphernalia, becomes fit to enjoy the association of excellent women during the reign of six Manus.

HBV 16.355

My dear son, those who enthusiastically increase the beauty of Lord Krsna's chariot will obtain the merit of visiting Prayaga with each step he takes.

HBV 16.356

Now hear about the pious merit that is achieved by those who repeatedly chant, Jayal Jayal during the Ratha-yatra procession of Lord Krsna.

HBV 16.357–358

O emperor, the same merit one attains by bathing at Haridvara, Prayaga, Gahga Sagara, and Varanasi, as well as that attained by seeing the demigods, can be achieved simply by chanting Jayal Jayal again and again, during the Ratha-yatra procession of Lord Visnu. This has been confirmed by the compilers of the scriptures.

phalaṁ na tan mayā jñātaṁ jānāti yadi keśavaḥ

I do not know the merit obtained by those who, during the Ratha- yatra procession of Lord Hari on EkadasI, chant auspicious mantras and exclaim]aya\ Jayal; offer incense, a ghee lamp, and other articles; offer prayers; and offer food to Lord Krsna with devotion. Only Lord Kesava knows the truth of this matter.

HBV 16.362–363

madyapaḥ sarva-pāpo'pi kali-kālena mohitaḥ |
rathāgrataḥ padaikena mucyate sarva-pātakaiḥ

Even the most sinful people, such as those who plunder brahmanas, wealth, kill cows, perform abortions, blaspheme the Supreme Lord, commit other grave sins, kill brdhmanas, enjoy sex with their spiritual master's wife, drink wine, and are bewildered by the influence of Kali and thus are not afraid of committing any kind of sin, can be freed from all sinful reactions simply by approaching a moving ratha of the Supreme Lord.

HBV 16.364

kiṁ cānyatra—
rathārūḍhe mahā-viṣṇau ye kurvanti jaya-svanam |
pūjāṁ cākhila-pāpebhyo muktā yānti hareḥ padam

Those who offer worship and chant Jayal Jayal when Lord Maha- Visnu rides on His chariot, are freed from all sins, and thereafter return to the abode of Lord Hari.

HBV 16.365

When Lord Krsna is carried to His chariot and then comfortably seated, one should chant Jayal Jayal, offer Him worship, and shower lavish prayers upon Him.

May Lord Visnu—whose face resembles a fully blossomed blue lotus flower and is illuminated by His brightly shining earrings, swinging to and fro, whose forehead is decorated with moon-shaped tilaka drawn with sandalwood paste and rice paddy, who gives pleasure to everyone by showering the nectar of His darsana, and who is the eternal residence of Laksmi—protect all the people of the world.

Pious persons, whose intelligence is worth glorifying, felt joyful; all disturbances came to an end; sober persons felt satisfied; people whose enemies were subdued enjoyed life; and all the demons swiftly ran away to mountain caves or dense forests in fear, as Lord Krsna, the killer of the demons and Lord of the Yadu dynasty, mounted His chariot.

O Danavas, quickly run away! For the purpose of maintaining all the people of the world, Lord Krsna, who had previously assumed the form of the half-lion, half-man incarnation, has mounted His chariot.

HBV 16.372

ततो विचित्र-गद्यानि पठित्वाथ महाप्रभोः ।

After reciting very nice verses in praise of Lord Krsna, one should joyfully accept the Lord's remnants of food and flower garlands.

HBV 16.373

bhaktyā gṛhṇāti yo mālāṁ vaiṣṇavīṁ maṅgalāśrayām |
na teṣāṁ durlabhaṁ kiñcid iha loke paratra ca

The Lord's remnants of food are the source of all auspiciousness. Those who faithfully honor the Lord's prasadam need not hanker after anything, both in this life or the next.

HBV 16.374

तस्मात् सर्व-प्रयत्नेन सर्व-काम-समृद्धये ।

To achieve the fulfillment of one's desires, one should honor with great respect the Lord's remnants of flower garlands, which bestow both material happiness and liberation.

HBV 16.375

Thinking that great devotees, such as Prahlada Maharaja, are pulling the Lord's chariot, Vaisnavas should pull it on a royal road and bring it to the palace.

HBV 16.376

The chariot of Lord Visnu should be taken on procession throughout the city, accompanied by singing, the playing of musical instruments, and the dancing of pure devotees.

HBV 16.377

418 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA In anticipation of the Ratha-yatra festival of Lord Mukunda, devotees should nicely decorate the city, placing colorful flags here and there, erecting large gates, and placing banana trees at all the crossings. O maintainer of the earth, the city should also be decorated with colorful and auspicious paintings of chariots.

HBV 16.380

rathena gacchan bhagavān anugamyo'khilair janaiḥ |
sva-sva-gehāgrataś cārcyo'nyathā doṣo mahān bhavet

It is the duty of everyone to follow the ratha upon which the Supreme Lord is seated. Everyone should worship the Lord when the chariot arrives before their houses. If someone fails to do so, it will be an offense.

HBV 16.381

तत्रैव—

tatraiva—
rathena saha gacchanti purataḥ pṛṣṭhato'grataḥ |
viṣṇunaiva samāḥ sarve bhavanti śvapacādayaḥ

Those who accompany the Lord's chariot, either by walking behind it, by its side, or in front of it, are to be considered as good as Lord Visnu, or an exalted brahmana, even if they were born in the family of dog- eaters.

HBV 16.382

रथस्थ ये न गच्छन्ति भ्रममाण जनार्दनम् ।

rathasthaṁ ye na gacchanti bhramamāṇaṁ janārdanam |
viprādhyayana-sampannā bhavanti śvapacādhamāḥ

Those who refuse to follow the Supreme Lord as He is seated on His chariot while being taken in procession are lower than dog-eaters, even though they may be well-versed in all scriptures.

HBV 16.383

कि च,

kiṁ ca,
yeṣāṁ gṛhāgrato yāti rathastho madhusūdanaḥ |
pūjā tais taiḥ prakartavyā vitta-śāṭhya-vivarjitaiḥ

It is the duty of everyone to give up miserliness and worship Lord Madhusudana when He arrives in front of one's house, seated upon His chariot.

HBV 16.384

अनर्चितो यदा याति गृहाद् यस्य महीधरः ।
पितरस् तस्य विमुखा वर्षाणा दश पञ्च च anarcito yadā yāti gṛhād yasya mahīdharaḥ |

pitaras tasya vimukhā varṣāṇāṁ daśa pañca ca

If the Supreme Lord, who sustains the universe on His hood, returns to His temple without having been worshiped when He came before one's house while seated upon His chariot, one's forefathers become angry and remain hostile for fifteen years.

HBV 16.385

यः पुनः कुरुते पूजा गृहायाते तु माधवे ।

yaḥ punaḥ kurute pūjāṁ gṛhāyāte tu mādhave |
vasate śvetadvīpe tu yāvad indrāś caturdaśa

One who adores Lord Madhava when He comes before his house while seated upon His chariot will reside in the supreme abode of the Lord known as Svetadvlpa for one kalpa.

HBV 16.386

420 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA If one, out of mistake, does not follow the Lord as He is seated upon His chariot, he becomes a great demon as a result of that offense, even if he burns to ashes all his karma in the fire of knowledge.

HBV 16.387

atha sva-mandiraṁ nītvā pūrvavat pūjayet prabhum |
rātrau jāgaraṇaṁ kuryād vidhivad vaiṣṇavaiḥ samam

Thereafter, one should bring the Supreme Lord back to His temple and offer Him worship as usual. That night, one should remain awake in the association of devotees.

HBV 16.388

kṛtvāpi pātakaṁ ghoraṁ brahma-hatyādikaṁ naraḥ |
kṛtvā jāgaraṇaṁ viṣṇor dhūta-pāpo bhaven mune

O sage, even after committing grave sinful activities, such as killing a brdhmana, one can be freed from all reactions simply by remaining awake on the night of Prabodhanl.

HBV 16.390

कर्मणा मनसा वाचा पाप॰ यत् समुपार्जितम् । क्षालयेत् तच् च गोविन्दः प्रबोधन्या॰ तु जागरे

karmaṇā manasā vācā pāpaṁ yat samupārjitam |
kṣālayet tac ca govindaḥ prabodhanyāṁ tu jāgare

Simply by remaining awake during the night of the PrabodhanI festival of Lord Govinda, one can be freed from all the reactions to the sinful activities he had committed by his body, mind, and speech.

HBV 16.391

दुष्प्राप्य॰ यत् फल॰ विप्रैर् अश्वमेधादिभिर् मखैः ।

āplūtya sarva-tīrthāni dattvā ca kāñcanaṁ mahīm |
na tat phalam avāpnoti yat kṛtvā jāgaraṁ hareḥ

The merit one obtains by remaining awake on the night of the PrabodhanI festival of Lord Hari cannot be attained even by bathing in all the holy places, or giving gifts of gold and land in charity.

HBV 16.393

चन्द्र-सूर्योपरागे तु यत् फल परिकीर्तितम् ।

candra-sūryoparāge tu yat phalaṁ parikīrtitam |
tat-sahasra-guṇaṁ puṇyaṁ prabodhanyāṁ tu jāgare

Remaining awake on the night of PrabodhanI awards one a thousand times more merit than that which one received by bathing at Kuruksetra during a solar or lunar eclipse.

HBV 16.394

स्नान दान तपो होमः स्वाध्यायश् चार्चन हरेः ।

422 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA tat sarwarh kotigunitarh prabodhanydntu jagare Remaining awake during the night of Prabodhani bestows ten million times more merit than taking a holy bath, giving charity, performing austerity and sacrifice, studying the Vedas, and worshiping Lord Hari.

HBV 16.395

समतीत भविष्य च वर्तमान कुलायुतम् ।

samatītaṁ bhaviṣyaṁ ca vartamānaṁ kulāyutam | viṣṇu-lokaṁ nayaty āśu jāgareṇa prabodhanī

One who remains awake during the night of Prabodhani will be enabled to deliver ten thousand generations—past, present, and future— to the abode of Lord Visnu.

HBV 16.396

चलन्ति पितरो हृष्टा विष्णु-लोकम् अलङ्कृताः ।

calanti pitaro hṛṣṭā viṣṇu-lokam alaṅkṛtāḥ |
vimuktā nārakair duḥkhaiḥ kartuḥ kṛṣṇa-prajāgaram

When one remains awake and glorifies Lord Krsna on the night of Prabodhani, his forefathers are liberated from hellish life and happily attain the abode of Lord Visnu.

HBV 16.397

भार्या-पक्षे तु ये जाता मातृतः पितृतस् तथा ।

bhāryā-pakṣe tu ye jātā mātṛtaḥ pitṛtas tathā |
tārayen nātra sandehaḥ prabodhanyāṁ tu jāgare

There is no doubt that all the members of the mother's family, father's family, and wife's family are delivered if their descendents observe the vow of remaining awake during the night of Prabodhani.

HBV 16.398

कि□ च—

kiṁ ca—
phalair nānā-vidhair dravyaiḥ prabodhanyāṁ tu jāgare |
śaṅkhe toyaṁ samādāya arghyaṁ dadyāj janārdane

While remaining awake on the night of Prabodhani, one should offer varieties of fruit, various articles, and water in a conch shell, to Lord Janardana, as arghya.

HBV 16.399

यत् फलꣳ सर्व-दानेषु सर्व-तीर्थेषु यत् फलम् । तत् सर्वꣳ कोटि-गुणितꣳ दत्त्वार्घ्यꣳ बोध-वासरे

yat phalaṁ sarva-dāneṣu sarva-tīrtheṣu yat phalam |
tat sarvaṁ koṭi-guṇitaṁ dattvārghyaṁ bodha-vāsare

Ten million times the merit obtained by giving all kinds of charity and taking bath in all the holy places, can be attained simply by offering arghya to the Supreme Lord on the night of Prabodhani.

HBV 16.400

पाद्मे च तत्रैव—

pādme ca tatraiva—
anyatrāpi priyā viṣṇor jāgare syāt prabodhanī |
kiṁ punar mathurāyāṁ sā tato vai janma-sadmani

Remaining awake on the night of Prabodhani at any place is an activity that is dear to Lord Visnu. What then can be said about observing this vow at the birthplace of Lord Krsria in Mathura?

HBV 16.401

एकैवैकादशी कृष्ण-जन्म-गेहे कृता नरैः ।

ekaivaikādaśī kṛṣṇa-janma-gehe kṛtā naraiḥ |
tato'dhikaṁ na kartavyaṁ loke kiṁ ca na vidyate

If one observes only one fast for Ekadasi at the birthplace of Lord Krsna, there is no need for him to perform any other auspicious act.

HBV 16.402

रात्रौ जागरण तत्र प्रीत्या कुर्वन्ति ये नराः ।

By assuming the form of a cowherd girl, Sri Radhika, who possesses the topmost ecstatic love for Krsna, who is always overwhelmed by separation from Krsna, and who has the great fortune of dancing with Krsna, enabled all the people of this world to become dear devotees of Lord Hari.

O n e should break his fast on DvadasI in the fortnight of the waxing moon in the month of Karttika. One should offer this great vow, which is observed with great difficulty, at the lotus feet of Lord Krsna. By doing so, and by worshiping Lord Janardana, one will certainly attain the abode of Lord Visnu.

HBV 16.412

śrī-guror mantram āsādya puraścaraṇa-karmaṇi |
dīkṣāṁ kṛtvā punas tenānujñātaḥ prārabheta tat

After receiving initiation mantras from the spiritual master, one should take instruction from him about the observance of purascarana and thereafter begin the ritualistic performance.

HBV 17.4

आगमे—
विना येन न सिद्धः स्यान् मन्त्रो वर्ष-शतैर् अपि । कृतेन येन लभते साधको वाञ्छित फलम्

āgame—
vinā yena na siddhaḥ syān mantro varṣa-śatair api |
kṛtena yena labhate sādhako vāñchitaṁ phalam

dgame (In the Agama it is stated) bind yena na siddhah sydnmantro varsa satairapi krtena yena labhate sddhako vdnchitam phalam Purascarana refers to the ritualistic performance without which one's chanting of mantras cannot produce the desired results.

HBV 17.5

पुरश्चरण-सम्पन्नो मन्त्रो हि फल-दायकः ।
अतः पुरस्क्रिया कुर्यान् मन्त्रवित् सिद्धि-काङ्क्षया

puraścaraṇa-sampanno mantro hi phala-dāyakaḥ |
ataḥ puraskriyāṁ kuryān mantravit siddhi-kāṅkṣayā

With the performance of purascarana, the chanting of mantras certainly bears fruit. Therefore, one who is conversant with the art of chanting mantras and who desires such perfection should perform purascarana.

HBV 17.6

किं होमैः किं जपैश् चैव किं मन्त्रायास-विस्तरैः ।

kiṁ homaiḥ kiṁ japaiś caiva kiṁ mantrāyāsa-vistaraiḥ |
rahasyānāṁ hi mantrāṇāṁ yadi na syāt puraskriyā

What is the use of strenuously endeavoring to perform fire sacrifices and chant mantras {{purascarana is not executed? Without purascarana, the confidential understanding of one's mantras will remain undisclosed.

HBV 17.7

पुरस्क्रिया हि मन्त्राणा प्रधान वीर्यम् उच्यते ।

नानेन साधनं किञ्चिद् इष्टार्थस्य तपोधन

nānena sadṛśo dharmo nānena sadṛśaṁ tapaḥ |
nānena sādhanaṁ kiñcid iṣṭārthasya tapodhana

O one who is endowed with ascetic prowess, in order to attain the fulfillment of one's desires, there is no other religious practice, no austerity, and no sadhana as effective as the performance of purascarana.

HBV 17.11

12 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA While drawing the kurma, one should write two vowels, beginning with a and a, in the eight directions, starting with the east. Then one should write the seven vargas, beginning with ka, in seven directions, excluding the north-east. The north-east should be marked with the letter ksa, and in the middle of each section of the tortoise's back, one should write the first letter of landowner's name. Where the first letter of the performer's name is found—that place is to be considered the mouth of the kurma and it is there that the mantras should be invoked. The two sections bordering the kurma's mouth are considered to be his two hands, below that are his two sides, followed by his two legs, and the last section is considered to be his tail. By sitting on the kurma's mouth and chanting the appropriate mantras, one will attain perfection. By sitting on the kurma's hands, one will come to experience great distress, and by sitting on his sides, one will certainly face difficulty.

After performing one's morning duties in relation to cleanliness, one who is conversant with the chanting of mantras should, with a purified mind, choose beads that are easily available from those which have been approved. One should insure that the beads are matching in terms of size and shape. Beads that have been eaten by insects should be rejected and they should be purified by washing them with the five products obtained from the cow. The beads should be strung as previously described, so that they are arranged in order, from the biggest to the smallest. One should use nine strands of thread that have been prepared by his pious wife, and these should also be purified with the five products obtained from the cow. If the mala is to be used for the performance of religious rituals, white string should be used. If the mala is to be used for chanting mantras for the purpose of bringing others under control, the thread should be red. If the mala is to be used for chanting mantras to subdue one's enemies, the thread should be black. In this regard, silk thread may also be used to string the mala.

While stringing the mala, the beads and thread should

There is another method of performing purascarana. During a solar or lunar eclipse, one should fast, remain in a pure state of mind, and chant his worshipable mantras from the beginning of the eclipse until the end, while standing in the water of a river that flows into the sea up to his waist.

There is still another method of performing purascarana. During a solar or lunar eclipse, one should first ritualistically bathe and then chant his worshipable mantra while carefully controlling his mind from the beginning of the eclipse up until the end. One should perform the other prescribed limbs, such as homa, as previously described.

Indeed, the principles of purascarana are based on devotion to the spiritual master. Therefore, one should serve the spiritual master every day with love and devotion. There is no doubt that even if one cannot properly perform the process of purascarana, he can attain perfection simply by serving the spiritual master.

viṇ-mūtrayor athālpatvaṁ bhaven nidrā-jayas tathā

70 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA One who has attained perfection by chanting his mantra becomes very powerful, as brilliant as the sun, and as pleasingly effulgent as the moon, walks in a distinctive manner like a bird, does not become thin even if he eats very little, does not suffer even if he eats too much, passes very little urine and stool, and conquers sleep.

HBV 17.253

japa-dhyāna-rato maunī na khedam adhigacchati |
vinā bhojana-pānābhyāṁ pakṣa-māsādikaṁ mune

O sage, a perfected chanter of mantras who is fully absorbed in meditation on the Supreme Lord and who thus normally remains silent does not feel any distress if he does not eat or drink for fifteen days, or even a month.

HBV 17.254

pravṛttaiḥ sampraboddhavyaṁ prasanno mantra-rāḍ iti

When all of these wonderful symptoms appear, it should be understood that the sacred mantra has become very pleased with the chanter.

HBV 17.255

प्रकाशनीय विप्रेन्द्र कस्यचित् सिद्धिम् इच्छता

mantra-prasāda-janitaṁ liṅgaṁ ca na guror vinā |

O best of brdhmanas, one who desires to attain complete perfection should not disclose the fact that he has attained these symptoms that are born of the perfection of chanting to anyone other than his spiritual master.

HBV 17.256

तच् चोक्तम्—

tac coktam—
siddha-mantro'pi nityaṁ hi trisandhyaṁ kṛṣṇam arcayet |
niyamenaika-sandhyaṁ vā japed aṣṭottaraṁ śatam

Even though one has attained the perfection of chanting, he should continue to worship Lord Krsna three times a day. As an alternative, he can worship the Lord once a day and chant his mantra one hundred and eight times.

HBV 17.257

ते चोक्ताः—

te coktāḥ—
anuṣṭhito yathānyāyaṁ yadi mantro na sidhyati |
punas tāvat prajaptavyas tataḥ siddho bhaved dhruvam

Even after properly following all of the prescribed rules and regulations, if one does not attain perfection, then he should simply continue his chanting so that eventually, he will certainly attain perfection.

HBV 17.258

Even if one does not attain perfection by chanting his mantra over a long period of time, he should practice the seven methods of achieving perfection that were instructed by Mahadeva.

HBV 17.259

72 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA Those who are wise have said that the seven methods for achieving perfection by chanting mantras, such as dravana and dahana are applicable to the chanting of all mantras.

HBV 17.260

However, the sacred Gopala mantra does not depend upon the execution of any kind of sadhana. It bears fruit as soon as one begins chanting it, just as fire burns one as soon as one touches it.

I shall now describe to you the understanding of yantra, which when worshiped awards wealth to the worshiper. First, one should select a place in his house or in the forest, or a secluded place within the temple of the Supreme Lord. This place should be cleansed with cow dung and pure water. After cleansing, one should construct a platform there.

HBV 17.263

विलिख्य गन्ध-पङ्केन लिखेद् अष्ट-दलाम्बुजम् । कर्णिकाया लिखेद् वह्नि-पुटित मण्डल-द्वयम्

vilikhya gandha-paṅkena likhed aṣṭa-dalāmbujam |
karṇikāyāṁ likhed vahni-puṭitaṁ maṇḍala-dvayam

One should draw on the platform with sandalwood paste a lotus flower having eight petals. Then, within the whorl of that lotus, one should draw two triangles forming a hexagon.

HBV 17.264

तस्य मध्ये लिखेद् बीज साध्याख्य कर्म-स युतम् ।
ततः शिष्टैर् मनोर् वर्णैस् त काम वेष्टयेत् सुधीः

tasya madhye likhed bījaṁ sādhyākhyaṁ karma-saṁyutam |
tataḥ śiṣṭair manor varṇais taṁ kāmaṁ veṣṭayet sudhīḥ

In the middle of the hexagon, an intelligent devotee should write the kamdbija, along with his personal ambition. One should also write kllrh krsndya namah. Then, a learned scholar should surround the kdmabija with the other seventeen syllables of the eighteen-syllable mantra.

HBV 17.265

श्रिय षट्-कोण-कोणेष्व् ऐन्द्र-नैर्ऋत-वायुषु । आलिख्य च लिखेन् माया वह्नि-वारुण-शूलिषु śriyaṁ ṣaṭ-koṇa-koṇeṣv aindra-nairṛta-vāyuṣu |

ālikhya ca likhen māyāṁ vahni-vāruṇa-śūliṣu

One should write the srlblja on the eastern, south-western, and north-eastern sides of the yantra, and he should write the mayabija in the south-eastern, western, and north-eastern sides.

HBV 17.266

मन्त्र षड्-अक्षर तत्र विलिखेत् षट्सु सन्धिषु । अक्षरैः काम-गायत्र्या वेष्टयेत् केशरे सुधीः

mantraṁ ṣaḍ-akṣaraṁ tatra vilikhet ṣaṭsu sandhiṣu |
akṣaraiḥ kāma-gāyatryā veṣṭayet keśare sudhīḥ

One should write the six-syllable Krsna mantra on the six joints of the yantra. The letters of the Kama-gayatrl mantra should be written all around the petals of the lotus.

HBV 17.267

काम-माला-मनोर् वर्णैर् दलेष्व् अष्टसु मन्त्र-वित् ।

kāma-mālā-manor varṇair daleṣv aṣṭasu mantra-vit |
likhed guhānanair bhaktair māntrikāṁs tad-bahir likhet

74 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA Using nicely-prepared homemade ink, a learned devotee should write the forty-eight-syllable Kama-mala mantra on the eight petals of the lotus so that each petal has six letters. Outside the lotus, one should write the fifty-one mdtrka varnas.

HBV 17.268–270

भू-बिम्ब च लिखेद् बाह्ये श्री-माया दिग्-विदिक्सु च ।
एव यन्त्र समालिख्य जात-रूप-मये पटे राजते ताम्र-पट्टे वा भूर्जे क्षौम-मये'पि वा । sūkṣma-tantu-paṭe vāpi pratiṣṭhāpya samīraṇam

hutvā sahasram ājyena yantre sampātapūrvakam |
arcayitvāyutaṁ japtvā dhārayed yantram uttamam

Outside these mdtrka varnas, one should draw Bhu-mandala. Outside Bhu-mandala, one should write srirh in the four directions, beginning with the east, and outside that, one should write hrlrh in the four corners, beginning with the north-east. Outside srirh, one should also draw a symbol representing a vajra. After preparing the yantra by writing on a gold plate or leaf, one should invoke life into the yanta by chanting the appropriate mantra. Thereafter, he should perform a fire sacrifice by offering one thousand oblations of ghee. Then, he should worship the yantra and chant his mantra ten thousand times as japa. After completing the ritual, one should wear the powerful yantra.

HBV 17.271–272

त्रैलोक्यैश्वर्यम् आप्नोति देवैर् अपि सुपूजितः ।

piśācayakṣa-rakṣāṁsi krūra-bhūta-gaṇāś ca ye |
duṣṭa-sarpādayaḥ sattvā hy apasarpanti dūrataḥ

By wearing this yantra, one achieves all the opulence of the three worlds and is worshiped by the demigods. The wives of the demigods and Nagas become attracted to one who wears this yantra. Yaksas, Raksasas, ghosts, hobgoblins, wild animals, and snakes run away to a great distance from one who wears this yantra.

HBV 17.273

Miscreants run away in fear when they see someone wearing this king of yantras. Everyone becomes happy by the influence of this yantra and so, what more can I say?

HBV 17.274

yoga-siddhi-karaṁ puṁsāṁ bhava-sāgara-tārakam |
bhukti-mukti-pradaṁ divyam iti proktaṁ ca vedhasā

This yantra attracts all kinds of women, keeps the rulers of men under control, awards mystic perfection to great yogis, delivers one from the ocean of material existence, awards on material enjoyment and liberation and ultimately enables one to return to the transcendental abode of the Lord, Vaikuntha. This has been confirmed by Brahma himself.

Śrī-mūrti-prādurbhāvaḥ — Manifesting the Deity Form

408 aligned entries · 481 numbered texts

HBV 18.1

यस्य प्रसादादज्ञोऽपि सद्यः सर्वज्ञता व्रजेत् । स श्रीचैतन्यदेवो मे भगवान् सम्प्रसीदतु

yasya prasādādajño'pi sadyaḥ sarvajñatāṁ vrajet |
sa śrīcaitanyadevo me bhagavān samprasīdatu

May Lord Sri Krsna Caitanya become pleased with me because by His mercy, even a fool can become omniscient.

HBV 18.2

अपेक्ष्यन्तेऽर्चनेऽवश्यमधिष्ठानानि वैष्णवः ।

apekṣyante'rcane'vaśyamadhiṣṭhānāni vaiṣṇavaḥ |
śrīmūrtayaśca tatrāpi sākṣātkārasukhapradāḥ

Vaisnavas are always eager to engage in worshiping the Supreme Lord as He appears as the Deity in various mediums. Indeed, devotees become joyful upon seeing the Deities in the temple, beautifully decorated and lavishly worshiped.

HBV 18.3

श्रीमूर्तीना लक्षणानि लिखितान्येव कानिचित् ।

śrīmūrtīnāṁ lakṣaṇāni likhitānyeva kānicit |
prādurbhūtervidhistāsāṁ pratiṣṭhāyāśca likhyate

Previously, while discussing arcane, we mentioned some of the forms of the Deities. Now, we shall discuss the Deities' appearance and the method for Their authorized installation.

HBV 18.4

अथ श्रीमूर्तिप्रादुर्भावणम्

bhaktyaiva bhagavanmūrtiprādurbhāvo'pi cedbhavet |
kartavyo'thāpyupāyo'tra pūrvaḥ sadbhiḥ pradarśitaḥ

Although the Deity manifests in a form that is just suitable for accepting the worship of His devotee, some mahdjanas have outlined the ways in which the Deity should be invited to appear

HBV 18.5

प्रतिमा कारयित्वा तु देवदेवस्य चक्रिणः । न दुर्गतिमवाप्नोति विष्णुलोक स गच्छति

pratimāṁ kārayitvā tu devadevasya cakriṇaḥ |
na durgatimavāpnoti viṣṇulokaṁ sa gacchati

visnu dharmmottare (In the Visnu-dharmottara it is stated) pratimarh kdrayitvd tu devadevasya cakrinah na durgatimavdpnoti visnulokarh sa gacchati One who arranges for the carving and installation of a Deity of Lord Visnu, the master of the demigods who holds a cakra in His hand, will not experience the miseries of material existence, but will attain the eternal abode of the Lord.

HBV 18.6

देवस्य प्रतिमायान्तु यावन्तः परमाणवः ।
तावद्वर्षसहस्राणि विष्णुलोके महीयते devasya pratimāyāntu yāvantaḥ paramāṇavaḥ |

tāvadvarṣasahasrāṇi viṣṇuloke mahīyate

O n e who worships the Deity will go to reside in the abode of Lord Visnu for as many thousands of years as there are atoms in the Deity.

HBV 18.7

प्रासादव तथा तस्याः फल सम्यगुदाहृतम् । उत्तरोत्तरतो द्रव्यैर्विना पक्वेष्टका द्विजाः prāsādava tathā tasyāḥ phalaṁ samyagudāhṛtam |

uttarottarato dravyairvinā pakveṣṭakāṁ dvijāḥ

Just as one earns incomparable merit by constructing a temple of the Supreme Lord, one acquires a similar merit by installing a Deity in that temple. O brdhmanas, the merit attained by arranging for a Deity to be made from stone, iron, copper, silver, or gold, is progressively more for each proceeding one. However, one should not use bricks for preparing a Deity.

HBV 18.8

प्रतिमा लक्षणोपेता नरसिहस्य कारयेत् ।

pratimāṁ lakṣaṇopetāṁ narasiṁhasya kārayet |
sarvapāpāni santyajya sa tu viṣṇupure vaset

O n e who carves a Deity of Lord Nrsirhhadeva having all the authorized characteristics will be freed from all sinful reactions and after death attain the planet of Lord Visnu.

HBV 18.9–11

विष्णोस्तावत् प्रवक्ष्यामि यादृक रूप प्रशस्यते ।

kvacidaṣṭabhujaṁ vidyāccaturbhujamathāpi vā |
dvibhujaścāpi kartavyo bhavane sa purodhasā

I shall now describe the various forms of Lord Visnu. The Deity of the Lord should hold a conch, disc, club, and lotus in His four hands. He should appear very peaceful, His forehead should be very broad, and His throat should resemble a conch shell with three lines. His nose should be raised, His vision should be auspicious, His ears should flare majestically, and His chest should be broad. He may be two-armed, especially if He is to be worshiped in one's house. Sometimes, the Deity should be four- armed or eight-armed. In the house of an dcarya, the Deity is generally two-armed.

HBV 18.12

देयमष्टभुजस्यास्य यथास्थान निबोधत ।
खड्गो गदा शरः पद्म देय दक्षिणतो हरेः ॥ धनुश्च खेटकञ्चैव शङ्खचक्रञ्च वामतः deyamaṣṭabhujasyāsya yathāsthānaṁ nibodhata |

khaḍgo gadā śaraḥ padma deyaṁ dakṣiṇato hareḥ ||
dhanuśca kheṭakañcaiva śaṅkhacakrañca vāmataḥ

Now, hear of the positions of the weapons that are held by the eight- armed Deity of the Lord. Beginning with the uppermost right hand to the lowest, the Lord holds a trident, club, arrow, and lotus. Beginning from the uppermost left hand to the lowest, the Lord holds a bow, shield, conch shell and cakra.

HBV 18.13

चतुर्भुजस्य वक्ष्यामि यथैवायुधस स्थितिः । दक्षिणे च गदा पद्म वासुदेवस्य कारयेत् ।

caturbhujasya vakṣyāmi yathaivāyudhasaṁsthitiḥ |
dakṣiṇe ca gadāṁ padmaṁ vāsudevasya kārayet |
vāmataḥ śaṅkhacakre ca kartavye bhūtimicchatā

Hear now about the weapons held by the four-armed form of Vasudeva. O n e who desires wealth should place a club and a lotus in His right hands, and a conch and cakra in His left hands.

HBV 18.14

कृष्णावतारे तु गदा वामहस्ते प्रशस्यते । यथेच्छया शङ्खचक्रे उपरिष्टात् प्रकल्पयेत्

kṛṣṇāvatāre tu gadā vāmahaste praśasyate |
yathecchayā śaṅkhacakre upariṣṭāt prakalpayet

Regarding the four-armed form of Krsna, one should place a club in His lower left hand while a conch and cakra should be placed in His upper hands.

HBV 18.15–16

अधस्तात् पृथिवी देवी कर्तव्या पदमध्यतः ।
दक्षिणे प्रणत तद्वद्गरुत्मन्त निवेशयत् ॥ वामतस्तु भवेल्लक्ष्मीः पद्महस्ता सुशोभना garutmānagrato vāpi saṁsthāpyo bhūtimicchatā |

śrīśca puṣṭiśca kartavye pārśvayoḥ padmasaṁyute

Lord Visnu's associates should be arranged in the following manner. Bhumi-devT should be placed below His lotus feet. To His should be Garuda, standing with folded hands. To the Lord's left should be a beautiful Deity of LaksmI holding a lotus flower in her hand. O n e who desires wealth should place a deity of Garuda in front of the Lord. SridevI and Pustidevi, who are expansions of Maha-LaksmI, should be placed on either side of Lord Visnu.

HBV 18.17

तोरणञ्चोपरिष्टाच्च विद्याधरसमन्वितम् । तथा कल्पलतोपेत स्तुवद्भिरमरेश्वरैः toraṇañcopariṣṭācca vidyādharasamanvitam |

tathā kalpalatopetaṁ stuvadbhiramareśvaraiḥ

Near the temple gate that is decorated with creepers and so on, one should install deities of the Vidyadharas and other demigods, who are engaged in offering prayers to the Lord.

HBV 18.18

श्रीमूर्तिपरिमाणम् तत्रैव—अङ्गुष्ठपर्वादारभ्य वितस्ति यावदेव तु । śrīmūrtiparimāṇam tatraiva—

aṅguṣṭhaparvādārabhya vitastiṁ yāvadeva tu |
gṛhe vai pratimā kāryā nādhikā śasyate budhaiḥ tatraiva (In the same literature it is stated) angustha parvvdd drabhya vitastim ydvadeva tu grhe vai pratimd kdryyd nadhikd sasyate budhaih Using the width of the joint of the thumb as a measurement, cwelve fingers, or about six or seven inches is a nice size for a Deity that is to be worshiped at home. Learned authorities do not consider large Deities to be suitable in this regard.

82 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA

HBV 18.19

आषोडशात्तु प्रासादे कर्तव्या नाधिका ततः ।
मध्योत्तमकनिष्ठा तु कार्या वित्तानुसारतः

āṣoḍaśāttu prāsāde kartavyā nādhikā tataḥ |
madhyottamakaniṣṭhā tu kāryā vittānusārataḥ

The Deity that is to be installed in the temple can range from one to sixteen feet in height. According to one's means, one should arrange for a small, medium, or large Deity.

HBV 18.20

सौम्या तु हस्तमात्रा वसुदा हस्तद्वयोच्छ्रिता ।
प्रतिमा क्षेमसुभिक्षाय भवेत्त्रिचतुर्हस्तप्रमाणा च

saumyā tu hastamātrā vasudā hastadvayocchritā |
pratimā kṣemasubhikṣāya bhavettricaturhastapramāṇā ca

A Deity that is one foot high is considered enchanting. A Deity that is two feet tall awards the worshiper wealth. A Deity three feet tall bestows auspiciousness, and a Deity four feet in height awards prosperity.

HBV 18.21

प्रासादस्योत्तरे भागे शिला नीत्वा च देशिकः । कृत्वा कर्मकूटी रम्या प्रतिमाकर्म कारयेत्

prāsādasyottare bhāge śilāṁ nītvā ca deśikaḥ |
kṛtvā karmakūṭīṁ ramyāṁ pratimākarma kārayet

A priest or dcdrya should arrange for a large block of marble, construct a nice cottage to the north of the temple, and have expert craftsmen carve the Deity there.

HBV 18.22

चतुरस्रायता कृत्वा शिला स स्थाप्य चार्चयेत् । शिरो मुखञ्च पृष्ठे च अङ्कयित्वा तु बुद्धिमान्

caturasrāyatāṁ kṛtvā śilāṁ saṁsthāpya cārcayet |
śiro mukhañca pṛṣṭhe ca aṅkayitvā tu buddhimān

First, the large block of marble should be cut into a rectangular solid and then worshiped. The face and head of the Deity should then be painted on one of the sides. In this way, the acarya should begin the carving of the Deity according to the means of his disciple.

HBV 18.23

यजमानानुकूल्येन गुरुः कर्म समारभेत् ।
शिलां पूर्वाननां कृत्वा अथवा उत्तराननाम् । तोयेन ब्रह्मघोषाइः स्नाप्य पश्चालिं हरेत्

yajamānānukūlyena guruḥ karma samārabhet |
śilāṁ pūrvānanāṁ kṛtvā athavā uttarānanām |
toyena brahmaghoṣāiḥ snāpya paścāliṁ haret

Before beginning, the block of marble should be kept facing east or north and bathed with water while being worshiped along with the chanting of Vedic mantras.

HBV 18.24

दधि-दूर्वाक्षतैः पूजां नवारम्भे समाचरेत् । शुक्लैर्गन्धैश्च माल्यैश्च मन्त्रेणानेन देशिकः

dadhi-dūrvākṣataiḥ pūjāṁ navārambhe samācaret |
śuklairgandhaiśca mālyaiśca mantreṇānena deśikaḥ

The acarya should worship the marble block with offerings of yogurt, rice paddy, durva grass, white sandalwood paste, and flower garlands, while chanting the following mantra.

HBV 18.25

ओं तत् सत् नमः ।
योऽसौ भगवान् सर्वजगतः प्रवीरः सङ्कर्षणो वासुदेवः प्रवरवराह जय सुप्रतिष्ठित कीर्तिं प्रवर्द्धयस्व ओं ओं फट् फट् नमः

yo'sau bhagavān sarvajagataḥ pravīraḥ saṅkarṣaṇo vāsudevaḥ pravaravarāha jaya supratiṣṭhita kīrtiṁ pravarddhayasva oṁ oṁ phaṭ phaṭ namaḥ

84 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA One should chant the mantra orh tat sat namah orh tat sat namah pravirah sankarsano vasudevah pravaravaraha jaya supratisthita kirtti pravarddhayasva orh orh phat phat namah.

HBV 18.26

स्वस्ति वाच्य द्विजान् सम्यग्गुरुभक्त्या समर्चये । वस्त्रपुष्पादिदानेन अशाठ्येन तु पूजयेत्

svasti vācya dvijān samyaggurubhaktyā samarcaye |
vastrapuṣpādidānena aśāṭhyena tu pūjayet

The assembled brdhmanas should recite Vedic mantras to create an auspicious atmosphere, and they should be served very respectfully by being given cloth and flower garlands.

HBV 18.27

मङ्गलैर्ब्रह्मघोषाधैः प्रतिमा स□विभाजयेत् ।
मध्यसूत्र□ समास्फाल्य तीक्ष्णशस्त्रेण चोत्किरेत्

maṅgalairbrahmaghoṣādhaiḥ pratimā saṁvibhājayet |
madhyasūtraṁ samāsphālya tīkṣṇaśastreṇa cotkiret

The block of the marble should be divided into the various limbs of the Deity by marking it with a sharp weapon and then spreading threads over it, while reciting auspicious Vedic hymns.

HBV 18.28

स्वकीयाङ्गुलिमानेन मुख□ स्याद्द्वादशाङ्गुलम् ।
मुख-मानेन कर्तव्या सर्वावयवकल्पना

The Deity of Vasudeva, the Lord of the demigods, should have four arms. He should hold a cakra in His upper right hand, a lotus in His lower right hand, a club in His upper left hand, and a beautiful conch shell in His lower left hand. Such a Deity awards one all-auspiciousness.

100 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA The Deity of Lord Krsna should be playing His flute. He should have a crown of peacock feathers; He should possess a dark complexion; He should be two-armed; and He should stand in His three-fold bending posture.

HBV 18.88

शिल्पिना कृष्णभक्तेन विश्वकर्मोक्तजानता

pratimāṁ kṛṣṇadevasya yatnataḥ kārayet sudhīḥ |

An intelligent devotee should select an expert devotee artist who can nicely carve a Deity of Lord Krsna having the characteristics that were outlined by Visvakarma.

HBV 18.89

दशपञ्चाङ्गुला मुख्या मध्यमा द्वावशाङ्गुला । अष्टाङ्गुलाधमा सा तु न्यूनाधिक्य न कारयेत् daśapañcāṅgulā mukhyā madhyamā dvāvaśāṅgulā |

aṣṭāṅgulādhamā sā tu nyūnādhikyaṁ na kārayet

A Deity of Lord Krsna that is fifteen fingers in height is the best. A Deity of Lord Krsna that is twelve fingers in height is also considered very good, and a Deity of Lord Krsna that is eight fingers in height is also acceptable. One should not prepare a Deity larger or smaller than this.

HBV 18.90

Out of ignorance or illusion, if one who is the lowest among mankind carves a Deity of Lord Krsna either bigger or smaller than the above- mentioned sizes, his endeavor goes in vain and his worship of the Deity is futile.

HBV 18.91

A Deity of the Lord should be carved according to the measurements that are mentioned in the sdstra, and not otherwise. O foremost of sages, a Deity carved in the kingdom of Kasmlra awards one great wisdom, and a Deity made of gold awards the worshiper liberation.

HBV 18.93

A Deity made of stone awards wealth; a Deity made of silver bestows devotional service upon the worshiper; a Deity made of wood benedicts one with great prowess, and a Deity made of sand enables one to destroy his enemies.

HBV 18.94–95

101 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA A copper Deity enhances one's wealth and awards one immense happiness. A Deity made of clay is always considered auspicious, and He awards the worshiper material enjoyment and liberation. I have thus described the various kinds of Deities. Apart from these, there are two more Deities—those that are painted and those that are written in the form of letters.

HBV 18.96

There is no fault involved if a Deity was not carved according to the prescribed measurements if He is situated on the peak of a mountain, on the bank of a river, in an open courtyard, in a pasturing ground, on the seashore, or in a forest.

HBV 18.97

For the benefit of his disciple, a spiritual master should set out to find a suitable stone for carving a Deity of the Supreme Lord. He should begin his journey on an auspicious day, at an auspicious moment, when there is an auspicious conjunction of stars planets, during the fortnight of the waxing moon when the sun travels in the northern hemisphere. He should dress in white garments, decorate himself with a garland of white lotuses and white sandalwood paste, and wear a crown of white flowers. He should be accompanied by strongly-built men to carry the stone and expert sculptors to carve it.

First, the spiritual master should worship Nrsirhhadeva and pray for His mercy. He should also worship the Lord's weapons, such as the axe. Then, he should drink some ghee while remembering Lord Hari and perform the nyasa on all his bodily limbs. All the while, the brahmanas should recite sacred hymns. He should then look at auspicious things, such as yogurt, durva grass, cow's urine, a mirror, a white flower, and so on. He should then depart, after offering obeisances to a pitcher filled with water.

trikoṇā daśamī tāsāṁ saṁsthānañca nibodhata

O foremost brdhmanas, hear now about the various kinds of stands, according to the different Deities. It has been ascertained that there are ten kinds of altars—sthandila, vapi, yaksi, vedl, mandala, purnacandra, vajra, padma, ardhacandrd and trikond.

HBV 18.456–460

tathaiva dhanurākārā sārddhacandrā praśasyate
triśūlasadṛśo tadvat trikoṇā ūrddhvato matā |
prāgudakpravaṇā tadvat praśastā lakṣaṇānvitā

A sthandila stand is square and without a belt. A vapi stand has two belts. A yaksi stand has three belts. A vedi stand is square but a Deity 196 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA should not be installed on it. A mandald stand is round and has three belts. A purnacandra stand should be red and it should have two belts. A vajra stand is hexagonal and has three belts. A padma stand is just like a lotus flower having sixteen petals and it is a little smaller at the base. An ardhacandra stand looks just like a bow. A trikona stand looks like a trident. If these stands appear to be not so well made on the northern side, they still are considered auspicious and suitable.

HBV 18.461

परिवेषास्त्रिभागेन निर्देश तत्र कारयेत् ।

pariveṣāstribhāgena nirdeśaṁ tatra kārayet |
vistāra tatpramāṇaṁ tu mūle cāgre tathorddhvataḥ

The circumference of the stand should be divided into three parts and the dividing line should extend from the base up to the top.

HBV 18.462

जलमार्गस्तु कर्तव्यस्त्रिभागेन सुशोभनः ।
लिङ्गस्यार्द्धत्रिभागेन स्थौल्येन समधिष्ठितः jalamārgastu kartavyastribhāgena suśobhanaḥ |

liṅgasyārddhatribhāgena sthaulyena samadhiṣṭhitaḥ

The drainage system should also be beautified by dividing it into three parts. Its width should be one-third the width of the linga.

HBV 18.463

मेखला तु त्रिभागेन खात वै तत्प्रमाणतः । अथवा पादहीन तु शोभन कारयेत् सदा

mekhalā tu tribhāgena khātaṁ vai tatpramāṇataḥ |
athavā pādahīnaṁ tu śobhanaṁ kārayet sadā

The drain hole should be one-third the width of the belt. This measurement is not a hard and fast rule and so the hole may be somewhat smaller.

HBV 18.464

उत्तरस्थ॑ प्रमाणन्तु प्रमाणादधिक॑ भवेत् । स्थण्डिलायामथारोग्य॑ धन-धान्यञ्च पुष्कलम्

uttarasthaṁ pramāṇantu pramāṇādadhikaṁ bhavet |
sthaṇḍilāyāmathārogyaṁ dhana-dhānyañca puṣkalam

The area where the water flows out of the base should be larger on the northern sides than on the other sides.

HBV 18.465–466

गोप्रदा तु भवेद्यक्षी वेदी सम्पत्प्रदा भवेत् । मण्डलाया॑ भवेत् कीर्तिर्वरदा पूर्णचन्द्रिका ayupradā bhavedvajrī padmā saubhāgyadāyinī |

putradā tvarddhacandrā syāttrikoṇā śatrunāśinī

A sthandild stand awards one wealth, a vdpl stand bestows immense wealth, a yaksl stand awards one the wealth of cows, a vedi stand bestows opulence, a mandald stand gives one a good reputation, a purnacandrd stand awards benedictions, a vajra stand gives one a long duration of life, a padmd stand bestows good fortune, an ardhacandrd stand blesses one with good children, and a trikona stand enables one to defeat his enemies.

HBV 18.467–468

dāruje dārujāṁ kuryānmiśre miśrāṁ tathaiva ca |
nānyayonistu kāryā vai sadā śubhaphalepsubhiḥ

Thus, the ten kinds of Deity stands have been described by me. A marble Deity should have a marble stand, a clay Deity should have clay stand, a wooden Deity should have a wooden stand, and a Deity made of various substances should have a stand made of several things. Those who desire their own welfare should never prepare a stand improperly.

HBV 18.469

yasya devasya yā patnī tāṁ pīṭhe parikalpayet |
evameva samārakhyātaṁ samāsāt pīṭhalakṣaṇam

The breadth of the stand should equal that of the Deity of Lord Visnu, or Siva lihga. O n e should accept the Deity stand as being non-different from the Deity's consort. Thus, the characteristics of the Deity's stand have been described in brief.

HBV 18.470

bhāgadvayena pratimāṁ tribhāgīkṛtya tat punaḥ |
piṇḍikā bhāgataḥ kāryā nātinīcā na cocchritā

The height of the Deity should be one-fourth the height of the main gate, and the height of the Deity's stand should be one-third the height of the Deity. The stand should neither be too high nor too low.

HBV 18.471

vimbamānādyathā pīṭhaṁ kuryāddevasya tacchṛṇu |
caturastrañca tadviddhi caturasrāyataṁ tu vā

The altar should be constructed according to the size of the Deity, and it should be square, or quadrangular.

तदर्द्धनोन्नत कुर्य देतत् सामान्यलक्षणम्

vimbocchrāya-samaṁ pīṭhaṁ paritaścaiva vistṛtam |
tadarddhanonnataṁ kurya detat sāmānyalakṣaṇam

Each side of the altar should be equal to the height of the Deity. This is the primary characteristic of the altar and the height can vary according to one's taste.

HBV 18.473

चतुरस्रस्य पीठस्य कथित तु महामुने ।
चतुरस्र यतस्याथ प्रमाणमवधारय

caturasrasya pīṭhasya kathitaṁ tu mahāmune |
caturasra yatasyātha pramāṇamavadhāraya

O exalted sage, these are the characteristics of a quadrangular altar. Hear now about the caturasrdyata altar.

HBV 18.474

विम्बाद्धीनन्तु विस्तीर्णं तत्प्रमाणेन चोन्नतम् ।

vimbāddhīnantu vistīrṇaṁ tatpramāṇena connatam |
samaṁ devasya dairghyaṁ vā caturasrāyataṁ tu tat

An altar is called caturasrdyata when its width is less than that of the Deity and its height is the same as the Deity's height.

HBV 18.475

kārya tuṅgālayasthānāṁ devatānāṁ mahāmune |
calānāṁ veśmasaṁsthānāṁ vimbānāṁ pīṭhamanyathā

O foremost sage, the altar of a movable Deity in a big temple, and the altar of a Deity that is worshipped at home, are distinct in style.

HBV 18.476

200 SRI H A R I - B H AKTI - VILASA dpddajdnuharyyantarh vistdrenocchrayena ca The altar of a Deity that is worshiped at home should be proportionate to the size of the Deity, or it can be equal to one's own height.

HBV 18.477

वक्षोऽन्तरे वा विम्बस्य तस्यार्द्धेन च विस्तृतम्

ūrvarddhenāthavā kuryāt savistāra dvijonnatim |
vakṣo'ntare vā vimbasya tasyārddhena ca vistṛtam

O brahmana, the height of the railings of the altar's platform can reach the Deity's thighs, or in some cases, even to His chest.

HBV 18.478

तच्चतुर्भागहीन तु त्रिभाग चार्द्धमेव वा ।

taccaturbhāgahīnaṁ tu tribhāgaṁ cārddhameva vā |
aṅga tvaṁ viddhi tat pīṭhaṁ calavimbasya sarvadā

O Ariga, you should know that the size of the altar of a movable deity should be about one-fourth the main altar.

HBV 18.479

धातुद्रव्यस्य चाभावात् स्थिराणामेकमेव च । कृत्वा तु तदधः कुर्यादुपपीठ प्रमानतः dhātudravyasya cābhāvāt sthirāṇāmekameva ca |

kṛtvā tu tadadhaḥ kuryādupapīṭha pramānataḥ

In the absence of enough metal, one can construct an altar similar to that of the immovable Deity, and then a smaller altar.

HBV 18.480–481

त्रिभागेनाथ पीठस्य प्रमाण मध्यतो भवेत् ।

tryaṁśamānena vistīrṇaṁ tasyāpi tryaṁśamantarā |
nikhanedagrato mūlāt tat kuryānmakarānanam

This smaller altar should be one-third the size of the main altar, both in height and width. The shape of this altar should resemble a shark.

HBV 19.1

श्रीचैतन्य प्रविष्टोऽस्मि शरण सुष्ठु येन हि । आविष्टो याति दुष्टोऽपि प्रतिष्ठा सदभिष्टुताम्

śrīcaitanyaṁ praviṣṭo'smi śaraṇaṁ suṣṭhu yena hi |
āviṣṭo yāti duṣṭo'pi pratiṣṭhāṁ sadabhiṣṭutām

I take shelter of Lord Caitanya, by whose influence even a sinful man becomes fit to be glorified by saintly persons.

HBV 19.2

प्रतिष्ठयैव भगवदाविर्भावो विशेषतः । प्रतिमासु ततस्तासा प्रतिष्ठा विधिनाचरेत् pratiṣṭhayaiva bhagavadāvirbhāvo viśeṣataḥ |

pratimāsu tatastāsāṁ pratiṣṭhāṁ vidhināćaret

Only by formal installation does the Supreme Lord manifest Himself as the Deity. Therefore, one should carefully follow the procedure for installing the Deity that is outlined in the revealed scriptures.

HBV 19.3

प्रतिष्ठा जीवमन्दिरम्

pratiṣṭhā jīvamandiram

Eleventh Canto of the Srimad-Bhdgavatam) pratistha jlvamandiram The installation of My Deity, who is the shelter of all living entities, should be performed.

204 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA sri devi prakrtih proktd kesavah purusah smrtah Lord Hari, the Supersoul of everyone, is the only worshipable Lord. His internal energy, Laksmi-devI, is referred to as prakrti in the sastra. Lord Kesava is referred to as purusa.

HBV 19.5

न विष्णुना विना देवी न हरिः पद्मजा विना ।

arcāmūrtiḥ smṛtaḥ kṛṣṇaḥ piṇḍikā kamalālayā |
tayoryo vidhinā yogaḥ sā pratiṣṭhā prakīrtitā

Laksmi will not remain at a place without the presence of Lord Visnu. Similarly, Lord Hari will not remain anywhere without the presence of Laksmi. One should know that the Deity of the Supreme Lord is directly Krsna and His stand, or altar, is Laksmi. The act of combining Them while observing the prescribed rules and regulations is known as pratisthd, or installation.

HBV 19.6

ज्ञानयोगसहस्राद्धि कर्मयोगो विशिष्यते

kriyāyogaḥ kathaṁ sidhyedgṛhasthādiṣu parvadā |
jñānayogasahasrāddhi karmayogo viśiṣyate

How is it possible for householders to follow the path of kriyd-yoga (karma-yoga) and achieve perfection? It is said that the practice of karma- yoga is thousands of times better than the practice of jndna-yoga.

HBV 19.7

क्रियायोग प्रवक्ष्यामि देवतार्चानुकीर्तनम् । भुक्तिमुक्तिप्रद यस्मान्नान्यलोकेषु विद्यते kriyāyogaṁ pravakṣyāmi devatārcānukīrtanam |

bhuktimuktipradaṁ yasmānnānyalokeṣu vidyate

I shall now speak about kriyd-yoga, which includes the glories of worshiping the Deity. There is no better method found in this world for attaining material enjoyment and liberation.

HBV 19.8

येनार्चा स्थापिता विष्णोः सप्तलोकस्य नायक

akṣayo bhavate tāvadyāvadāhūtasaṁplavam |
yenārcā sthāpitā viṣṇoḥ saptalokasya nāyaka

O Narada, who is famous throughout the seven planetary systems, the reputation of one who installs a Deity of Lord Visnu will remain for one kalpa.

HBV 19.13

प्रतिष्ठा शङ्करादीना देवाना ब्रह्मनन्दन । कृता तेन न सन्देहः सत्योक्त तव नारद

pratiṣṭhā śaṅkarādīnāṁ devānāṁ brahmanandana |
kṛtā tena na sandehaḥ satyokta tava nārada

O Narada, the son of Brahma, I speak truthfully. There is no doubt that simply by installing a Deity of the Supreme Lord one automatically installs the Lord's associates, such as the demigods, headed by Siva.

HBV 19.14

पितृणामर्यमादीना वासवादिदिवौकसाम् । कृता तेन महाप्रीतिः स्थापयित्वा जनार्दनम् pitṛṇāmaryamādīnāṁ vāsavādidivaukasām |

kṛtā tena mahāprītiḥ sthāpayitvā janārdanam

Simply by installing a Deity of Lord Janardana, one pleases Yamaraja, the forefathers, and the residents of heaven, headed by Indra.

HBV 19.15

यः स्थापयति देवर्षे देव मधुनिसूदनम् । तस्य सम्भाषणादेव पाप याति दशाब्दिकम्

yaḥ sthāpayati devarṣe devaṁ madhunisūdanam |
tasya sambhāṣaṇādeva pāpaṁ yāti daśābdikam

O sage among the demigods, simply by conversing with a person who has installed a Deity of Lord Madhusudana, one is relieved of the reactions to the sins that he had committed during the last ten years.

HBV 19.16

ये निरीक्षन्ति नन्दन्ति प्रतिष्ठा केशवस्य हि । ते वसन्ति हरेर्लोके युगानामेकवि शतिम्

ye nirīkṣanti nandanti pratiṣṭhāṁ keśavasya hi |

208 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA O Narada, the merit one acquires by bathing at the confluence of three rivers at Prayaga in the month of Magha; by offering oblations to the forefathers at Gaya during the dark fortnight in the month of Bhadra; by ritualistically bathing at Puskara in the month of Karttika; by taking a sacred bath at Kuruksetra during a solar eclipse; by taking a holy bath at Dvaraka in the month of Vais'akha; by bathing at Prabhasa during a lunar eclipse; by bathing at Siddhesvara and Hataka on Sivaratri; by ritualistically bathing at Suklatlrtha, in the Reva river, or at Ganga- sagara; by performing a horse sacrifice; by observing the DvadasI vrata; by giving ten million brown cows in charity; by giving one hundred pots of gold in charity; and by observing the cdndrdyana vrata and pdrdk vrata, is obtained by installing the Deity of Lord Hari.

One should insure that the planets are situated in an auspicious manner. One should first worship the predominating deities of the visible planets so as to avoid the sudden occurrence of a natural calamity, such as an earthquake. One should also insure that there is no presence of an inauspicious planet during the installation ceremony. Thus, on an auspicious day, and at an auspicious moment, one should perform the installation ceremony according to the prescribed rules and regulations.

Before performing a pious act, one should carefully consider the time and thus should avoid a period when Jupiter or Venus is present in the house of Simharasi. If one performs a pious act at such an unfavorable time, it will not prove fruitful, but will rather award an adverse result. It may even cause the performer to lose his son, brother, or wife. There is no doubt of this. Such an unwise performer may himself be killed and soon thereafter, his children may die.

The dedrya who orders the installation of the Deity should not have any bodily defect, and should be expert in chanting the Vedic mantras and reciting the Purdnas. He should be a knower of the Absolute Truth, devoid of greed and false pride, and from a place where black antelope are found. He should possess beautiful bodily features; always follow the codes of pure conduct; always shun the association of atheists; be equal to friends and enemies; and a dear devotee of Brahma, Visnu, and Siva, who is expert in convincing and discouraging others on the basis of the scriptures, a knower of architecture, and always faultless.

yasya devasya yadrupaṁ taddhyāne saṁsmaret sadā

After permanently installing the Deity, one should place his hand on the Deity's head and meditate on the Supreme Lord, whose form is completely spiritual, who is the master of the demigods, and who is the complete whole. He should recite the Devavrata prayers, prayers from the Sdma Veda, and the Rudra prayers. One should always meditate on his worshipable

Lord, either in His form as the Supersoul or as the Supreme Personality of Godhead, decorated with beautiful ornaments.

To install the deity of Rudra, one should chant Vedic mantras prescribed in connection with Rudra. To install the Deity of Lord Visnu, one should chant Vedic mantras prescribed in connection with Lord Visnu. To install the deity of Brahma, one should chant the Vedic mantras prescribed in connection with Brahma. To install the deity of Surya, one should chant the Vedic mantras prescribed in connection with Surya. To install other deities, one should chant the Vedic mantras prescribed for them. This is the duty of one who is wise because the installation of a deity with the chanting of Vedic mantras awards great satisfaction.

When the Lord is standing, it is considered that He is maintaining the universe. When the Lord is seated, it is considered that He is engaged in creation. When the Lord lies down, it is considered that He is engaged in annihilation, and when the Lord is moving, it is considered that He might be engaged in any kind of pastime. One should meditate on Lord Visnu, the master of the demigods, while performing nydsa. The worshipable Lord, who is situated in the lotus-like hearts of all living entities, who is the witness of everyone's activities, who is the knower of all living entities, whose form is fully spiritual, who is faultless, and who is smaller than the atom, should be invoked within the Deity. After performing the ritual of prana pratistha, one should consider that all of the great sages are situated within the body of the Deity. One should maintain the Deity's presence by chanting orh.

378 SRI HARI-BHAKTI-VILASA The presence of Lord Hari as the Deity can be understood if these symptoms are experienced during the course of the installation ceremony: a sudden happiness; fearlessness; rolling of the eyes; becoming perplexed; becoming fearful; becoming stunned; unconsciousness; loud roaring of the clouds; hearing an unknown and never before heard sound; shivering of the body; regaining lost eyesight; pride; becoming overwhelmed; hearing a divine sound; witnessing a wonderful performance of singing, dancing, and music by the Gandharvas; seeing a man or woman who is expert in the art of music; the sound of Mahadeva's carrier, Nandi, the bull; the sound of a flute, drums, or Vedic mantras; perception of a divine fragrance; and experiencing many different aromas from one object. By the manifestation of these symptoms it is to be concluded that Lord Hari has manifested as the Deity.

The host, or yajamdna, should be bathed with water from either the four pitchers kept in the four directions, the eight pitchers kept in the eight directions, the single pitcher kept in the center, all the pitchers mixed together. All these pitchers should be covered with white cloth, and their water should contain the five kinds of jewels. While performing this bathing ceremony, one should chant the mantra beginning with devasyatva, as well as mantras from the Sama Veda and Atharva Veda, or the mantra beginning with surdstvdm abhisincantu.

O n e who is intelligent should then install the dhvaja while chanting the eight-syllable mantra. He should offer rice mixed with yogurt to the dhvaja while chanting the mantra beginning with muncdmi tveti. The dhvaja should then be worshiped very nicely while chanting mantras, such as those beginning with dhruvddya and phadanta.

There are many processes for installing a movable Deity. Among them, we will first describe the processes described by Lord Hayagriva.

HBV 19.821

अचलश्च चलश्चैव द्विविधो विष्णुरुच्यते । अचलो ह्यादिपुरुषः प्रादुर्भावगतञ्चलः acalaśca calaścaiva dvividho viṣṇurucyate |

acalo hyādipuruṣaḥ prādurbhāvagatañcalaḥ

It is understood that there are two kinds of Deities of Lord Visnu— movable and immovable. The immovable form is the original Personality of Godhead, and the moveable form is His incarnation.

HBV 19.822

प्रासादे ह्यचलस्तद्वद्गृहेषु च चलाचलः ।

prāsāde hyacalastadvadgṛheṣu ca calācalaḥ |
sabhāmaṭhastho hyacalo gṛhasthānāṁ maṭhe calaḥ

The Deity in the temple is immovable. At home, there can be movable or immovable Deities. In the matha, the Deity should be immovable, and in a house of a householder, a movable Deity should be installed.

HBV 19.823

yato na vidyate tasmāt piṇḍikā tasya nedṛśī |
ato viśeṣādvakṣyāmi calānāṁ yādṛśo vidhiḥ

As far as the movable Deity is concerned, there is no need for spreading jewels and fixing the Deity's stand. I shall now describe the procedures that are recommended for installing moveable Deities.

HBV 19.824

prativimbāhataṁ śastrairutkīrṇaṁ pākajaṁ tathā |
trividhañca samuddiṣṭaṁ viṣṇurūpaṁ vicakṣaṇaiḥ

Learned authorities have classified Deities of Lord Visnu into three categories—those made of clay, those carved from stone, and molded Deities.

HBV 19.825

प्रतिविम्बाहतꣳ पूज्यꣳ तावत्कालꣳ तु पार्थिवम् ।

A clay Deity should be worshiped without delay after being constructed. There is no need to perform the various sarhskaras for this kind of Deity. The worship of this Deity is temporary and after the worship is completed, this Deity should be immersed on a body of water.

HBV 19.826

Deities that are carved from stone, jewels, or wood, with the use of various implements, should be installed in the temple.

HBV 19.827

ratnajaṁ nirmitaṁ śastraiḥ piṇḍikāsahitaṁ śubham |
piṇḍikārahitaṁ vāpi tadevaṁ dvividhaṁ punaḥ

Deities made from jewels should be attached to a purified stand, and should be carved with the use of a weapon. Such Deities are considered to be very auspicious. Deities made from jewels can also be installed without a stand.

HBV 19.828

रत्नजस्य तु रूपस्य पिण्डिका धातवी स्मृता ।

ratnajasya tu rūpasya piṇḍikā dhātavī smṛtā |
śailī tu śailajasyeṣṭā ratnajasya tu neṣyate

A Deity made of jewels should have a stand made of metal, and a Deity made of stone should have a stand made of stone. There is no harm if a Deity made of jewels has no stand.

HBV 19.829

पिण्डिकासहित॑ कार्य॑ चल॑ रत्नादिनिर्मितम् ।

piṇḍikāsahitaṁ kāryaṁ calaṁ ratnādinirmitam |
pākajaṁ dhātujaṁ vimbaṁ piṇḍikāsahitaṁ tu tat

Moveable Deities made of jewels should be installed with a stand. Molded Deities, metal Deities, and marble Deities should also have stands.

HBV 19.830

तेषा प्रतिष्ठा वक्ष्यामि स क्षेपाद्वेदनिर्मिताम्

teṣāṁ pratiṣṭhāṁ vakṣyāmi saṁkṣepādvedanirmitām

Now I will briefly describe the process for installing a moveable Deity according to the rules and regulations prescribed in the Vedas.

First, a mandapa should be prepared. The measurement of the mandapa should be ten feet on all sides, for this is considered to be auspicious. Within the mandapa, an altar should be constructed which is about five feet on all sides. Around the altar, one should dig sacrificial pits.

The spiritual master should bathe the Deity with the five products received from the cow, as before, accompanied by the sounds of conch shells, drums, and so on. Thereafter, he should offer sandalwood paste and flowers, and then cover the Deity with a white cloth.

Thereafter, the Deity should be transferred to the snana-mandapa for the performance of the abhiseka ceremony. This should be accommplished while chanting auspicious mantras, reciting suitable prayers, blowing conch shells, and playing musical instruments.

HBV 19.839

Thereafter, Lord Vasudeva, the spiritual master of the entire universe, should be invited by chanting the mantra beginning with deveti and meditating on Him as having a complexion as clear as crystal and the color of a kunda flower. His form is all-attractive and He bestows happiness upon all moving and non-moving living entities by the soothing rays emanating from His transcendental body. Indeed, He showers nectar in all directions in the form of His incomparable beauty. He holds a cakra, conch, lotus, and club in His four hands. He is adorned with a flower garland and ornaments made of diamonds and gold, and He is surrounded by His associates, such as Laksmi, Pusti, and Garuda.

One should first carefully examine the land to determine the exact place where the temple will be constructed. One should then design the temple, according to the rules and regulations that govern architecture. Land with a white hue is suitable for brdhmanas, reddish land is suitable for ksatriyas, yellowish land is suitable for vaisyas, and land having a blackish appearance is suitable for the use of sudras. In this way, one must judge the land before constructing a temple.

The land upon which the temple will be constructed should be as smooth as the surface of a mirror. O n e should drive eight pegs that are twelve fingers long into the ground to mark the allotted plot of land.

madhye suniścalaṁ śaṅkaṁ sthāpya chāyāṁ nirīkṣayet |
praveśe niṣkrame tasyāṁ śaṅkucchāyāṁ nirūpayet

A peg should be driven into the ground in the middle of the square portion of land, for the purpose of noting the measurement of its shadow, in the morning and in the evening.

HBV 20.78

516 SRI H ARI-BHAKTl-VILAS A chickpeas to Vitatha; honey and rice to Grhaksata; stale rice to Yama; scented rice to Gandharva; a buffalo horn to Bhrrigaraja; barley to Mrga; khichari to the Pitrganas; a stick to brush the teeth to Dauvarika; black cake to Bali; cake to Sugriva; sweet rice to Puspadanta; a lotus flower and kusa grass to Varuna; golden cake and wine to Asura; fried rice to Sosa; an iguana to Papajaksma; a laddu cooked in ghee to Roga; flowers and fruit to Naga; ghee to Mukhya; fried balls of moong dal to Ballata; sweet rice mixed with ghee to Candra; cake and a water lily to the serpents; puris made of wheat flour to Aditi; and puris made of white flour to Diti. These are the gifts that should be offered to the demigods who are situated in the outer squares. Offer condensed milk to Apa, yogurt to Apavatsa, kusa grass and a laddu mixed with black pepper to Savitri, cake made with gur to Savita, ghee and sandalwood paste to Jaya, sweet rice and red sandalwood paste to Vivasvan, yellow rice to Indra, fried rice to Mitra, sweet rice mixed with ghee to Rudra, cooked and raw meat to Rajayaksma, meat to Prthvldhara, meat to Kusmanda, and sweet rice to Aryama. In this way, the demigods should be offered their respective gifts while chanting their names and adding namah to the end. O n e should also offer the five products received from the cow, barley, sesame seeds, rice paddy, ghee, cooked rice, and varieties of cooked and uncooked food to Brahma.

Before beginning the construction of any building, house, or garden, or before starting renovation work, or before formally entering a new house, one should pacify the guardian deity as we have described. The entire land should be covered with string, and various prayers, such as the Raksoghna-sukta and Pavamana-sukra should be recited. There should be the chanting of the Lord's holy names, as well as dancing, the playing of musical instruments, and the recitation of auspicious mantras by the brahamanas to insure auspiciousness.

O foremost of demigods, a yajamana who is filled with material desires should offer gifts to the ghosts, demons, and hobgoblins as well. If the yajamana is without material desires, being a pure devotee of Lord Visnu, he should worship all these demigods with offerings of kusa grass, flowers, and rice paddy.

Toward the west of the principal temple there should be a temple of Laksml-Narayana. Toward the northwest there should be a flower garden. Toward the north there should be a sacrificial arena, and a place for depositing the remnants of the Lord's flower garlands. Both toward the west and toward the north there should be a place for offering gifts in charity, and in front of the temple there should be a diety for Garuda. In this way, an auspicious courtyard should be built for the benefit of all living entities.

जितेन्द्रियः सदा शान्तः सर्व-भूतहिते रतः । वासुदेव-परो नित्यꣳ न क्लेशꣳ कर्तुम् अर्हति

jitendriyaḥ sadā śāntaḥ sarva-bhūtahite rataḥ |
vāsudeva-paro nityaṁ na kleśaṁ kartum arhati

One who has controlled his senses, who is peaceful, who always thinks about the welfare of all living entities, and who is always under the shelter of Krsna, does not have to suffer the pangs of fasting, and so on.

HBV 20.378

ये स्मरन्ति सदा विष्णु॰ विशुद्धेनान्तरात्मना। ते प्रयान्ति भय॰ त्यक्त्वा विष्णु-लोकमनामयम्

ye smaranti sadā viṣṇuṁ viśuddhenāntarātmanā |
te prayānti bhayaṁ tyaktvā viṣṇu-lokamanāmayam

Those who always remember Lord Visnu with a pure heart become free from all types of fear and attain the transcendental abode of the Lord.

HBV 20.379

प्रभाते चार्ध-रात्रे च मध्याह्ने दिवसक्षये।
कीर्तयन्ति हरि॰ ये वै ते तरन्ति भवार्णवम्

prabhāte cārdha-rātre ca madhyāhne divasakṣaye |
kīrtayanti hariṁ ye vai te taranti bhavārṇavam

Those who glorify Lord Hari early in the morning, at midnight, at noon, and at the end of the day, certainly cross over the ocean of material existence.

HBV 20.380

आनन्दितोऽथवा चार्तः क्रुद्धः शान्तोऽथवा हरिम्।
योऽनुकीर्तयते भक्त्या स गच्छेद् वैष्णवी॰ पुरीम्

ānandito'thavā cārtaḥ kruddhaḥ śānto'thavā harim |
yo'nukīrtayate bhaktyā sa gacched vaiṣṇavīṁ purīm

Whether one is happy or afflicted by disease, whether one is in an angry mood or peaceful, if he simply glorifies Lord Hari throughout every condition of life, he will return to the abode of Lord Visnu.

HBV 20.381

गर्भ-जन्म-जरा-रोग-दुःख-स॒सार-बन्धनैः । न बाध्यते नरो नित्य॒ वासुदेवम् अनुस्मरन्

garbha-janma-jarā-roga-duḥkha-saṁsāra-bandhanaiḥ |
na bādhyate naro nityaṁ vāsudevam anusmaran

One who constantly remembers Lord Krsna in any condition of material existence, whether he is in the womb, in his childhood, in his old age, or in a diseased condition, he will not become bound to further birth and death.

HBV 20.382

एवम् एकान्तिना॒ प्रायः कीर्तन॒ स्मरण॒ प्रभोः । कुर्वता॒ परम-प्रीत्या कृत्यम् अन्यन् न रोचते

evam ekāntināṁ prāyaḥ kīrtanaṁ smaraṇaṁ prabhoḥ |
kurvatāṁ parama-prītyā kṛtyam anyan na rocate

Because practically all the unalloyed devotees of Lord Krsna are attached to chanting and remembering His transcendental pastimes with love and devotion, they are disinterested in whatever can be found within the material world.

bhāvena kenacit preṣṭha-śrī-mūrter aṅghri-sevane |
syād icchaiṣā॒ svamantreṇa svarasenaiva tad-vidhiḥ

If a devotee develops a special taste for serving the Lord in the mood of servitorship or friendship, he should continuously worship his Lord by the mantras received from the spiritual master, to nourish his particular sentiment.

HBV 20.384

विहितेष्वेव नित्येषु प्रवर्तन्ते स्वय हि ते। इत्याद्येकान्तिना भाति माहात्म्य लिखित हि तत् vihiteṣveva nityeṣu pravartante svayaṁ hi te| ityādyekāntināṁ bhāti māhātmyaṁ likhitaṁ hi tat

Such devotees are spontaneously attached to performing the eternal duties and observing the etiquette that is described in the scriptures. Indeed, the scriptures glorify the transcendental qualities of such unalloyed devotees of Lord Krsna, and we have also attempted to glorify them.

HBV 20.385

सदा सद्-आचार-परास् तु ये नरा, भवन्ति दामोदर-भक्त्यपेक्षया । तदीय-पादाम्बूज-धूलि-धूसर, कदा भवेद् अस्य शिरोऽधमस्य मे ?

tadīya-pādāmbūja-dhūli-dhūsaraṁ, kadā bhaved asya śiro'dhamasya me ?

When will the head of this fallen soul be smeared with the dust from the lotus feet of the exalted devotees who always observe the proper code of conduct in order to obtain devotional service at the lotus feet of Sri Sri Radha-Damodara?

May I become like a honey bee and take pleasure in drinking the nectar from the lotus feet of the great devotees who have no interest in obtaining the four objectives of human life, and whose hearts are like lakes filled with the water of transcendental mellows of ecstatic love for the lotus feet of Lord Mukunda, the son of Nanda, whose beauty defeats the sweetness af liberation. This book was completed at the house of Nanda Maharaja in Vrndavana, during the month of Karttika, in the year 1465 of the Saka era, when the sun enters Libra.
